Johnson Wins in Minnesota Senatorial Race

DELEGATES TO SET DATE FOR SIGNING PACT WEDNESDAY

FARMER-LABORITE GETS SENATE SEAT BY BIG PLURALITY

Johnson Had Lead of 26,588 Votes Over Preus With Less Than Half of Precincts Tabulated.

REGARDED AS TEST OF ADMINISTRATION

Victorious Candidate Is Follower of Robert M. La Follette, and Will Support Farm Bloc.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. St. Paul, Minn., July 16.—Magnus Johnson, a practical farmer, of Kimball, Minn., today was elected United States senator from Minnesota in succession to the late Knute Nelson. Johnson is a farmer-laborite and a follower of Robert M. La Follette.

When 1,729 of the state's 3,320 precincts had reported, Johnson had a lead of 26,588 over Governor Preus, the count standing: Johnson 160,521; Preus 142,933 and Carley 13,629. This vote—309,066—was believed to represent about three-fifths of the total cast.

REGARDED TEST OF ADMINISTRATION

The main issue in the special election held in Minnesota Monday to elect a successor to the late Knute Nelson, as viewed by the country at large, was Harding or La Follette, issues injected into the contest, making it clearly regarded as a test of the present administration.

Governor J. A. O. Preus, twice governor of Minnesota, and who was defeated Monday by Magnus Johnson, was an adherent of the Harding administration. He was nominated in the June 18 primaries from a field of nine candidates.

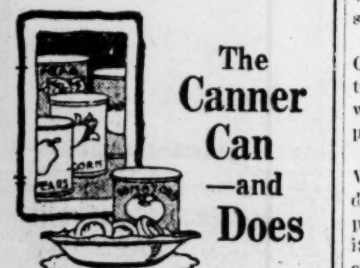

Johnson during his campaign announced his intention of affiliating with the La Follette group in congress if elected and he will support the farm bloc.

Preus, the defeated candidate Monday, last fall was re-elected chief executive of Minnesota over Johnson by a plurality of 14,000 votes.

The Canner Can—and Does

There are very few perishable foods that the canning industry can't put on your table the year round. There is such infinite variety that from canned goods alone complete and delicious meals can be served.

It's the versatility, also, that makes the Want-ads invaluable to the thrifty housewife. They can—and do—equip part or all of any household.

OFFICERS CLAIM FURTHER EVIDENCE AGAINST EDWARDS

Pair of Overalls, Said to Have Belonged to the Young Farmer, Shown to the Grand Jury.

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.
Staff Correspondent.

Marietta, Ga., July 16.—While the Cobb county grand jury was probing the mysterious shooting of D. D. Bullard, who was dangerously wounded while he lay asleep in his bed last Monday night, deputies working on the case unearthed further evidence, which they said strengthened the case against Edwards, the man accused of a "fore conspiracy" against his life aided by Mrs. Ruth Bullard, the wounded man's wife.

A pair of overalls said to have been discarded by Edwards in Dallas, Ga., when he drove through that town on the night of the shooting were recovered by Deputy Sheriff T. M. Sanders Monday. Grover Brown drove the officer to the spot where he said Edwards had pulled off the overalls and had thrown them into an alley.

Will Be Shown Book.

When the grand jury convenes again Tuesday morning, it will be shown the cheap paper-backed novel "Brownie's Triumph," which was found on the night table in the Bullard bedroom Saturday by a Constitution representative. The book was lying face down and on the open page were written the underscoring words: "Darling, it is settled, it is not, that you belong to me now?" On the first page were written in pencil the words: "You can return this book when you read it."

Deputies investigating ownership of the book said that they were convinced that the words were written by a man. They had been unable to get specimens of Edwards' handwriting, although they had made an effort to obtain some, they said.

Young Boy Dies In Swimming Pool At Maddox Park

Companions Make Vain Effort to Reach Him in Time to Save His Life.

The first death of the year in municipal swimming pools came Monday afternoon when a 9-year-old Howard Webster, of 69 Canal street, was drowned while several companions vainly tried to reach him in time to save his life.

Although the ambulance of the Grady hospital made a record run to Maddox park, where the youth was drowned, all efforts to revive him proved futile.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Webster. He went to Maddox park Monday afternoon in company with several companions and it is believed that he was seized with cramps while a good distance away from his friends.

His body was removed to the chapel of T. C. Bazemore and company. Funeral arrangements had not been completed late Monday night.

HARDING PARTY CHANGES PLANS; GOES TO SEWARD

Fairbanks, Alaska, July 16.—Somewhat fatigued by their 400 mile trip into the interior of Alaska and fearful of low water for their steamer in the Tanana river, President and Mrs. Harding shortly before noon today called off their contemplated 90-mile trip over the Richardson trail and instead will return directly to Seward from here, leaving this afternoon.

Latest Item for Erection of New Police Station Proposed by Councilman Beall at Last Minute.

CELLS NOT SANITARY DECLARES DR. VAUGHN

Voters Will Be Asked to Pass on $10,955,000 Appropriation at Election September 1.

With the last minute addition of a $350,000 bond issue request for a new police station, general council Monday passed on to vote of the people September 5, three new bond issues aggregating $8,995,000 as amendment to the original bond election ordinance which provided for a vote of $2,000,000 worth of park bonds, waterworks improvements of $1,500,000 and sewers and drains improvements of $7,145,000 are to be asked.

The additional issues bring the total to be considered September 5 to $10,955,000, several millions more than the presenting resources of the city make it legal to issue. Council approved the requests from the three departments without discussion of the complications that will ensue in case more bonds are voted than the city legally can issue.

Councilman Beall, author of the $350,000 police station bond proposal declared that present conditions in the police barracks and police headquarters are a disgrace to Atlanta.

Alderman Jesse Armistead, chairman of the police committee, declared that the iron bars of the cells are so corroded with age that a prisoner can work his way out of any one of them with a pen knife. Dr. Vaughn asserted that the sanitary condition existing in the cells is insufferable.

Councilman Couch opposed the issue, declaring that "the people aren't going to vote bonds for anyone any more."

"Everybody seems to be going bond crazy," he stated.

LAURENS OFFICIAL SHOT BY DENTIST

Argument Over Dental Work Is Blamed for Wounding of M. C. Dominey by Dr. H. M. Moore.

Dublin, Ga., July 16.—(Special.) M. C. Dominey, tax collector of Laurens county, was shot and seriously wounded Monday afternoon by Dr. Hugh M. Moore, prominent dentist.

The shooting occurred on South Jefferson street, the busiest street in the city, and caused considerable consternation among pedestrians. Physicians state that Mr. Dominey will recover.

Causes leading up to the shooting are said to be a very heated argument and a fist fight a few minutes previous to the shooting. It is reported that Dr. Moore stopped Mr. Dominey on the street in front of Smith's barber shop, and the two engaged in an argument over some dental work.

Mr. Dominey recently had some work started by Dr. Moore, but later went to a dental specialist in Atlanta. Dr. Moore is said to have accused Mr. Dominey that he should also go to Fulton county for votes. After heated words Mr. Dominey struck Dr. Moore and is said to have handled him roughly.

When he released Moore, the latter picked up his spectacles and ran from the street and a few minutes later is said to have accosted Mr. Dominey again with the statement that "Well, you slapped me, eh?" and whipped out a revolver and commenced firing.

Only one shot was fired before Mr. Dominey grappled with Moore for possession of the gun. The bullet took effect in the right side, just underneath the ribs, and ranged around near the back, but not making a deep wound.

Bobby Jones Wires Parents That He Will Arrive at Brookwood Station at 10:50 O'clock.

COMMITTEE NAMED TO WELCOME GOLFER

Jones Will Hold Public Reception at Chamber of Commerce Immediately After His Arrival Here.

With the crown of American golf-dom resting firmly on his youthful brow, Bobby Jones, winner of the nation open after a sensational finish in the playoff Sunday, will be welcomed home this morning by thousands of friends and admirers.

Arrangements have been made to greet him on his arrival at Brookwood station and then to take him to the chamber of commerce where the new golf king will hold a public reception.

This reception will last from 1:30 until 12 o'clock and chamber officials Monday urged every Atlantan who is able to do so to be on hand at the chamber building by 11 o'clock in order to have everything in readiness for giving the young golfer a truly royal welcome.

Will Be Met by Band.

At the station Jones will be met by committees from the Atlanta Athletic club, which he represented in the tourney, and the chamber of commerce. A big band has been engaged for the occasion.

Governor Clifford Walker wired Bobby congratulations Monday morning. Governor Walker went to LaVoglia Monday to attend the convention of editors but will return on the same train that will bring Bobby to Atlanta. He will also take part in the celebration.

His telegram was as follows:

"You have signally honored your native state. Georgia is proud of you. The people and the commonwealth send cordial greetings and congratulations."

Mayor Walter A. Sims also extended greetings.

Farmers Are "Mad as Fire"

Declares Mrs. Corra Harris

Lavonia, Ga., July 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—"The farmers are mad as fire and they are beginning to think like hot irons," Corra Harris, Georgia author, declared tonight in addressing members of the Georgia Press association on the subject of their relations with the public.

More than 30 years ago Mrs. Harris was sent by Clark Howell, editor of The Atlanta Constitution, to cover a day's session of the Georgia general assembly. Tonight she said that she still thought "the copy I turned in on this, my first and last assignment as a newspaper woman, the most dramatic piece of writing I ever did."

"The first live editor I ever saw was Clark Howell. Of The Atlanta Constitution. And my belief is that very few people ever saw a dead one. I do not know if you have ever thought of this, but editors almost never die during the ink and adversity period of their servitude. They usually retire or resign before the common fate of a newspaper man."

Mrs. Harris spoke of Mr. Howell as a "brave man" in sending her on her assignment to the Georgia legislature. She described several prominent editors and spoke of the "trials and hardships" confronting the country newspaperman.

Mrs. Harris discussed her impressions gained from many years of experience with editors. During this time, she said, she had never known an editor to "break his word or betray a confidence." Many persons,

Extension of City Limits Is Proposed On Peachtree Road

Councilman Watkins Proposes Annexation of 500-Foot Strip on Each Side to Piedmont Road.

MANY FINE HOMES INCLUDED IN STRIP

Third Annexation Proposal Calls for Taking Into City's Limits Part of West End Park.

The annexation to Atlanta of a strip of territory 500 feet on each side of Peachtree road from the present city limits nearly to Piedmont road, beyond Buckhead, was proposed to city council Monday afternoon by Councilman Edgar Watkins of the eighth ward. The proposal was referred to the charter amendments committee, of which Councilman Claude L. Ashley is chairman, and a public hearing on the proposal will be held within the next week.

The East Point, College Park and Esplanade annexation ordinance was introduced in its final form, designating the exact boundaries as announced in The Constitution last week, and providing for elections to be held in each of the suburbs. Council passed it without a dissenting vote.

West End Park.

A third annexation proposal, involving less territory than either of the others, was introduced to provide for bringing in a section of West End park bounded by Stokes and West Ontario avenues and West View cemetery. It was introduced by Councilman Jenkins and approved.

The Peachtree road annexation proposal was introduced by Councilman Horace Russell for Councilman Watkins, who was absent, and was turned over to the charter committee without debate. Councilman Watkins stated Monday night that he had introduced it at the request of the residents of the territory.

Bandits Abandon Stolen Machine

Automobile Is Found by County Police in Rock Quarry Just Off the Cascade Road.

Abandoned in a rock quarry in a strip of woods just off the Cascade road, police Monday afternoon recovered the large touring car which two unidentified white bandits took in the morning from DeWitt Davis, driver of the Belle Isle Taxi company, after they had bound and gagged him, leaving him in a church just off the Campbellton road.

Additional clues were obtained by the officers with the recovery of the car which led them to believe arrests probably would be made during Tuesday. The nature of the clues they refused to disclose.

Bound and Gagged.

Davis was bound with a hemp cord and gagged with a towel by two well-groomed young men, who engaged him to take them for a ride out the Campbellton road. He met the two robbers in front of the Georgian Terrace hotel, where they informed him they were staying.

Since the footpads abandoned the automobile their only reward for their trouble was 50c in money which they took from Davis' pockets. They overlocked $8 which he had in another pocket.

Davis told the police that after he was bound and the towel placed tightly over his face, the robbers searched his pockets, finding only $1 in change. He decided to take only

COUNCIL DROPS MUNICIPAL COAL YARD PROPOSAL

Action Is Taken After Representative Wood Appears to Urge Reconsideration.

COLLEGE LEADERS ASK MORE FUNDS FOR MAINTENANCE

Increases Totaling $368,000 Over Sums Received Last Year Asked at Joint Committee Meeting.

Faculty members and officials of the various colleges and higher institutions of the state appeared before a joint session of the senate and house appropriations committees Monday to voice appeals for increases totaling $368,000 over the maintenance appropriations of last year. No action was taken by the joint committees, which will continue the hearing Tuesday afternoon.

Former Governor Nat E. Harris, of Macon, and Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of the Georgia School of Technology, spoke in behalf of the increases for that institution, both declaring that unless additional funds are forthcoming Tech's progress will be retarded. The present amount appropriated for the maintenance of Tech is $112,500 per year. $175,000 is asked for this year.

Plea for University.

Chancellor David C. Barrow, of the University of Georgia, appeared in the interest of an increased appropriation for the university, asking that the regular appropriation of $85,000 be increased to $150,000. The growth of the institution and increased necessities during the past three years necessitate additional faculty members and an equipment for the institution. Chancellor Barrow stated.

Jerry Pound, head of the State Normal college at Athens, spoke briefly in behalf of an increase from $63,000 to $80,000 in the annual appropriation for his college.

Miss Rhoda Kaufman, executive secretary of the Georgia Welfare board, appealed for an increase of $15,000 in the yearly appropriation for carrying on the work in this department. Since its creation four years ago the board has been maintained on $15,000 yearly appropriation, which is wholly inadequate to meet expenses, she asserted.

It is expected that the joint committee will act on these requests.

Pay Ward Defended.

The Grady hospital pay ward proposal was warmly defended on the floor of council. Dr. A. H. Cochran, alderman from the second ward, stated that it was aimed to make it possible for the city to collect for services rendered to persons insured against personal injuries, but who now, under the law that forbids accepting pay, must be treated without cost, to the advantage only of the insurance companies. He declared further that many persons in moderate means do not want to be stigmatized as charity patients and want to pay something for hospital treatment. They now receive at Grady, but cannot afford to pay the rates charged by self-supporting hospitals.

Alderman Bob Gordon, Councilman Knight, Councilman Couch and others supported this position. Councilman Russell introduced a resolution reaffirming council's previous stand in favor of a pay ward, and the resolution was adopted by acclamation. Alderman Cochran and others, who had protested against establishing a pay ward, because of the possibility that it might cause discrimination against charity patients, did not vote. There was no dissenting vote.

Coal Yard Heated.

The municipal coal yard amendment became the subject of a spirited discussion.

Why the Weather?

DR. CHARLES F. BROOKS
Secretary American Meteorological Society, Describes:

Gaging Speed of Wind

"Who hath seen the wind?
Neither you nor I.
But when the trees bow down their heads
The wind is passing by."

—Christina Rossetti.

A person can tell approximately the speed at which wind is blowing by observing surrounding objects, especially trees and shrubbery. In a calm, smoke rises vertically. In a light air, with wind less than three miles an hour, smoke drifts, but weather vanes are not affected. In a slight breeze, from 4 to 7 miles, wind is felt on the face and leaves rustle, and in a gentle breeze, from 8 to 12 miles, wind extends a light flag and leaves and small twigs are in constant motion. A moderate breeze, from 13 to 15 miles, raises dust and moves small branches. The strong breeze blows from 25 to 31 miles an hour, and sets large branches in motion and umbrellas are troublesome. In a high wind, blowing from 32 to 38 miles an hour, whole trees are in motion and a person breathes the blast with some difficulty. Then comes the gale, from 39 to 46 miles, when twigs are broken from trees and human progress is impeded. A strong gale blows from 47 to 54 miles, a whole oak from 55 to 63 miles, and still fiercer are the storm and the hurricane.

American Insistence for the Open Door and Equal Opportunity Wins the Victory.

PREFERENTIAL RIGHTS REQUEST IS DROPPED

Allies Agree Also to Keep Confirmation of Turkish Petroleum Concession Out of Treaty.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Lausanne, July 16.—An agreement was reached late tonight on all the outstanding difficulties in the year's east conference, and nothing remains in the way of signature of peace. Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation, and the allied delegates discussed for several hours the questions of concessions and evacuation by foreign troops of Turkish soil and when at 11 o'clock the sessions were resumed, the atmosphere was electrical, recalling the night of February 4, when Lord Curzon, in accordance with his ultimatum, left for London and the first peace conference collapsed.

The delegates representing the great powers prepared to bravely encounter the Turks when they met the second time. One of them summarized the situation in his remark: "Little by little by terrific tenacity these Turks get more out of us, and now they have repented things we dreamed were already settled. We will try to end it tonight, but who can tell?"

American Victory.

American insistence for the open door and equal opportunity won the victory. After a struggle the allies agreed to keep confirmation of the Turkish petroleum concession question out of the treaty, and drop the request for preferential rights in future Turkish questions.

Complete accord was attained on all the questions at issue, and an official meeting will be held Wednesday to confirm and approve the agreement. A date for the signing of the compact also will be arranged. The date of signing, probably, will be about a week hence.

The agreement between the allies and the Turks brings the conference practically to a close and marks the end of the war between Greece and Turkey, which had raged with short interruptions since the days of the Balkan league in 1912.

The points at issue during the latter part of the conference, at which Turkey and Greece were the principal actors, concerned the extra territorial rights of foreigners within the domains of the Ottoman empire. On several occasions this vexed problem threatened the disruption of the conference when, through the offices of United States Ambassador Richard Washburn Child, the contending parties were brought together again.

First Break.

The first Lausanne conference broke down over the Russian attitude in the Dardanelles question. The emissaries ries from Moscow demanded the inclusion in the peace conference of all powers whose territory bordered on the Black sea and who had to use the Dardanelles as their only sea-way. When the allies allowed this contention the Russians made further demands, which were considered extravagant and which could not be entertained by the allies. The Russians thereupon withdrew from the conference, but maintained a delegation of several observers at Lausanne during the remainder of the conference.

Their influence on the Turkish delegates gave grave concern to the British and French diplomats; on several occasions when it was noticed that the attitude stiffened each time their delegates had been in conference with the men from Red Russia. The Turks under leadership of Ismet Pasha demanded the inclusion of the Russians at each session. The allies objected on the grounds that the Russians were only concerned with the Dardanelles issue. On this point the French and British put up a solid front virtually amounting to an ultimatum to Turkey.

Peace Threatened.

Another incident which at the time threatened international complications and which caused the final withdrawal of the Russians was the murder of the Russian delegate Voronofsky, who was killed by a young Swiss officer in the streets of Lausanne. The Soviet delegation held the Swiss government responsible for the assassination, but it was later shown that Voronofsky had refused the police protection offered to all delegates and the Swiss officer had been animated by personal hatred against the Russian.

The Lausanne conference ends the war between Turkey and Greece, which has flared up from first during the Balkan crisis of 1912-1913 and later during the Great War when Greece ranged herself on the side of the Allies. After the conclusion of the Treaty of Sevres between France and Britain and the Greeks, Turkey on the other side, the Greeks started their adventurous dreams of an imperial Hellenism in Asia Minor, which ended so disastrously at King Constantine and the Greek forces and which brought Mustafa Kemal Pasha back into Constantinople.

Mustapha Kemal headed the Ankara Turks during the British occupation of Constantinople but upon his approach on the east side of the Bosphorus, the Sultan of Turkey fled to Arabia leaving the English Turks in complete control of the former Ottoman empire.

news of a military victory over Germany during the war.

By continuing to hold the Ruhr France, in both a military and an economic sense, holds not only Britain, but the whole world by the throat. America is by no means omitted from the victims. If the occupation of the Ruhr is maintained in its present form the resulting economic paralysis will be such that about the only goods America will send to the continent next year will be consignments from Herbert Hoover and the American Relief association.

THREE MURDERED BY KNIFE FIEND

Voice Restored Through Faith Says Minister

Praising God, and declaring in tones heard throughout the great auditorium-moon, that his voice had been restored, Rev. W. J. Curtis, pastor of St. John's Episcopal church, of Tampa, Fla., Monday night, declared that three months ago he had lost his voice after suffering a severe attack of whooping cough. Since that time, he said, he had been unable to utter a word, until Monday night.

Monday night he attended the first of a series of meetings to be conducted in the auditorium by Rev. Mr. Richey, who, it is said, has effected many remarkable cures through prayer. The meeting had been conducted and the audience was leaving. Mr. Curtis declared that as he crossed the threshold of the auditorium, on his way to the street, his voice was restored as suddenly and as unexpectedly as a bolt from the sky.

He stopped for a moment, and then rushed back into the still crowded building, telling of his experience as he walked down the aisle.

He said that he would deliver his testimony from the platform at Tuesday night's meeting.

BANDITS ARE ROUTED BY VOLLEY OF SHOTS

A volley of shots from neighbors greeted two unidentified white bandits who Monday morning attempted to steal an automobile from the garage at 23 Rosser street. One of the robbers is believed to have been wounded.

Several places were robbed some time during Sunday night, or before daybreak Monday, according to reports filed with detectives. The places entered were W. A. Manning's plumbing shop, 153 West Peachtree street; the Mulholland garage, 92 Walker street; and the leather store of F. C. Boney, 78 1/2 Auburn avenue.

An unsuccessful attempt was made to enter the Atlanta Cadillac company's place, at 150 West Peachtree street, the robbers being fired upon by the night watchman.

ALLEGED ABDUCTORS OF GIRL ARE FINED

Lera Byrd, 20, of 81 DeKalb, was fined $51, and Leon Johnson, 20, of 525 Cherokee avenue, $26, in police court Monday morning under a blanket charge of disorderly conduct.

Their arrest grew out of the complaint of 15-year-old Maggie Bedford, 15, of 7 Oliver street, who claimed to have been abducted, thrown out of an automobile while doped, and left beside the road near Buckhead.

The case against Willie Maddox, 21, whose address was given as the Decatur road, was dismissed.

RICHARD SPATLEY RESTS IN WEST VIEW

Funeral services for Richard Spatley, 84, prominent in fraternal circles and a lay leader in church activities, were held Monday afternoon from the Church of the Epiphany, of which he was an active member. Rev. Russell K. Smith officiating. Interment was in West View cemetery. Pallbearers were selected from the present and past vestrymen of the Church of the Epiphany. Barclay & Brandon in charge.

Kamper Grocery Co. Announces Opening Of New Store Today

C. J. Kamper Grocery company will open a branch store this morning at 820 Peachtree street at the corner of Tenth street. F. E. Kamper, vice president of the company, announced Monday. This site was formerly occupied by Richards & Smith, grocers. Mr. Kamper stated that the new branch will be operated on the same plan as the main store, which is located at the corner of Linden and Peachtree.

Another real estate deal pending, it is said, is the location of a Woolworth store on the corner of Tenth and Peachtree streets to occupy premises formerly tenanted by Marshall's pharmacy and the King Hardware company. The latter soon will move into a new store between Tenth and Eleventh streets on Peachtree, it is announced.

tended his congratulations to Bobby and his telegram is as follows:

"Atlanta congratulates you upon your victory and welcomes you home."

In appointment, a reception committee headed by R. K. Rambo, President Alfred C. Newell, of the chamber of commerce, declared: "It seems to me our entire membership should pay tribute to this young man, who single handed, has put Atlanta before the whole world."

He issued the following statement: "Regarded from the cold blooded commercial standpoint, the value of the wonderful triumph to Atlanta of the victory of Bobby Jones cannot be measured in dollars and cents. It has given Atlanta world-wide publicity which millions of dollars could not buy."

It seems to me our entire citizenship should pay tribute to this young man, who, single-handed, has put Atlanta before the whole world. In other days, our soldiers, statesmen, poets and orators who put us in the limelight. Now, comes Bobby with his marble and puts Atlanta on the fringe of every paper in the United States.

"I have appointed a reception committee from the chamber of commerce to meet Bobby at the train tomorrow, and to take part in the procession from the station to the Chamber of Commerce building where he will be welcomed again by waiting friends. We will leave nothing undone to let this young man know that Atlanta appreciates his wonderful work."

Bobby's Message.

The only message that has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Jones, the proud parents of the champion, was as follows:

"Will arrive 10:50 Brookwood station, Tuesday. All love."

Nothing whatever about the tourney was mentioned in the message. This was a typical Bobby Jones message, according to his close friends.

Several hundred friends gathered at the station last year to welcome Bobby home when he finished just one stroke behind Gene Sarazen at Skokie. A much larger crowd is expected this morning than last year. A dinner and other social activities will be held but the plans have not all been worked out.

of a number of citizens of the affected territory.

1,000-Foot Strip.

The effect of the movement would be to bring into the corporate limits of Atlanta a 1,000-foot wide strip of territory on both sides of Peachtree road extending from the present city limits a hundred yards south of the Collier road intersection out nearly to the Piedmont road intersection, including Buckhead and the new Peachtree Road Presbyterian church.

This is a distance of nearly three miles and includes the highest priced residential property in Fulton county. It is roughly estimated to be worth $4,000,000 in real estate value alone in addition to several million dollars' worth of the state's most pretentious homes.

CITY COAL YARD PROPOSAL DROPPED

hate before council finally voted, 18 to 11, to repeal its former resolution in favor of the yards. Councilman Couch defended the project as a means of safeguarding the city from profiteering in case of another coal shortage, such as occurred in 1921. Councilmen Woodall, Greer and others announced the proposal as socialistic and unfair competition for legitimate business.

Modification of the pension changes was voted by acclamation on motion of Alderman Bachman. His resolution repealed the resolution which limited pensions to employees in the schools, fire and police departments. No action was taken on the provisions making $50 per month the maximum pension to be granted and making 35 years or more service the only grounds on which pensions can be granted.

The John Y. Smith bill, amending the charter to increase the authority of department heads, received the unanimous stamp of council's disapproval by adoption of a resolution introduced by Councilman Woodall of the police committee. He attributed the bill to a desire of its author to remove Chief of Police James L. Beavers from control of the police committee. Councilman Harry York stated that he had been informed that Attorney George C. Spence, counsel for Chief Beavers, had drafted the bill. It is in the form of a proposed charter amendment.

Mixed Claim Commission Makes Its First Decision

Washington, July 16.—The mixed claims commission, created to settle American claims against Germany, today made its first decision, an award of $3,316,765.92 to the International Harvester company for property seized in Germany.

Several other awards are expected before the commission suspends its work for the summer next week when the German commission, Dr. Kieselbach and members of his staff leave for a visit to Germany, returning about October 1. Some of the American officials will go to Germany later to obtain information for submission to the commission.

Today's decision was expedited by an agreement between the representatives of the German and American governments and was virtually a consent decree. The award, made in restitution of cash assets of subsidiaries of the International Harvester company seized by the German government in German banks, bears interest of 5 per cent, according to the terms of the treaty of Berlin, from December 12, 1921. No brief contesting the International Harvester

HARVEY WILL RETURN TO LONDON POST SOON

Washington, July 16.—George Harvey, American ambassador to the Court of St. James's, who has been on leave in this country for several weeks, will return to his post at London in a few weeks, it was said today at the state department.

Ever since the ambassador cancelled his sailing on the Leviathan on July 4, there have been reports that he might not return to England, but in response to inquiries today it was said definitely that he would do so.

Catarrh

ZONITE is a perfected form of the world-famous Carrel-Dakin solution. Clinical and laboratory tests with this new form of antiseptic have developed methods of antiseptics and healing unknown a few years ago.

These tests show Zonite to be an effective agent in overcoming nasal catarrh. The method is as follows:

Secure an atomizer in which the fittings are of hard rubber. Make a solution of one teaspoonful of Zonite to three-fourths of a glass of lukewarm water. Tilt the head well back and spray through a nostril until the liquid can be felt dripping from the post nasal cavity into the throat. Repeat the process through the other nostril.

This treatment should be employed three times daily—morning, evening and before retiring. The solution should not be allowed to stand in the atomizer, but should be freshly prepared each day. As the mucous membrane becomes accustomed to the sensation of the antiseptic the amount of water may be reduced until not over a half a glass is used to each teaspoonful of Zonite.

The above treatment should provide a feeling of comfort and relief within a few hours. In from two to four weeks it should cleanse and heal the mucous membrane, check all abnormal discharge and clear the nasal passages.

Note: A more copious flow of mucus after spraying is to be expected; it will soon disappear.

EDITOR PARDONED BY N. M. GOVERNOR

Santa Fe, N. M., July 16.—Governor Hinkle late today signed pardons to Carl C. Magee, editor of the New Mexico State Tribune, convicted on the charge of criminal libel of Justice F. W. Parker, of the state supreme court, and of contempt of the fourth judicial district court presided over by Judge D. J. Leahy.

In Judge Leahy's court last week, the editor was adjudged guilty of contempt on seven counts and sentenced to 300 days in jail. Fines amounting to $4,050 were assessed against the Magee Publishing company, co-defendant, for the publishing and circulation of editorials which the court held were in contempt.

Commenting on his action in issuing the pardons, Governor Hinkle said that the indictment on which Magee was tried for libel was obtained "without the knowledge or consent of the party supposed to have been libeled," and that trial was held in a district where neither Parker nor Magee lived, and that the bringing of a case to bar "seemed to be a conspiracy and more of a persecution than prosecution."

CLERKS TO SORT MAIL IN SPEEDING AIRPLANE

London, July 16.—A "flying mail train" is the latest type of airplane to be developed in England.

In the plane's mail-chamber, says the Daily Chronicle's aeronautical expert, sorters will be able to carry on their work just as they might in a railway mail-train. It will have a radius of 2,000 miles and will be able to stay in the air 24 hours without alighting. The crew in charge will be provided with regular sleeping quarters on board. They will, in fact, work in shifts while in the air, some of them sleeping while others are on duty in the control-chamber.

TWENTY-TWO NAMED IN BOUZE CONSPIRACY

Chicago, July 16.—Twenty-two men were named today as participants in the federal grand jury here today, charged with conspiracy to transport 1,000 cases of whisky from the Old Grand Distillery at Louisville, Ky., in September. Among those named in the indictments are O. H. Wathen and E. C. Kennedy, both of Louisville; William A. Sadler, formerly of Chicago, but now living in Canada; John J. McLaughlin and Matthew Weydert, of Chicago.

According to a statement made by the United States district attorney, indictments were returned by the grand jury, but were suppressed in order to apprehend Sadler. He was brought to Chicago last night by revenue agents.

McLaughlin, according to the district attorney's statement, made application for a permit to ship the whisky. He failed to get it and a forged permit was used.

Aviator Searches For Girl Wanted In Assault Case

Wausau, Wis., July 16.—Piloting his plane low over the dense tree tops, Mark Hubbard, aviator, told police Monday night he saw no signs of life in the swamp lands of Misinee, where Mary Lewando, 20, wanted for questioning in connection with the mysterious assault on her stepmother, Mrs. Walter Lewando, is believed hiding.

After two desperate attempts had been made by Sheriff Arthur Siewert and his deputies to pierce the forest fastness, Hubbard's plane was ordered into service.

Mrs. Lewando was attacked and severely beaten with a small hand axe as she lay asleep in her home last Wednesday night. When she sought refuge under the bed her assailant saturated a bedsheet with kerosene, lighted it and thrust it under the bed.

BOY STRUCK DOWN BY AUTOMOBILE

Horace Russell, Jr., the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Russell, 400 Virginia avenue, narrowly escaped serious injuries Monday at noon, when struck down by an automobile at Highland and Virginia avenues.

M. J. Harbin, of 236 Cascade avenue, the driver, stopped instantly, and placing the boy in his car, rushed him to the Georgia Baptist hospital, where surgeons found his injuries of a minor nature.

Mr. Harbin then carried the boy home, where Judge Russell requested Officer O. B. Andrews not to make any charges, as the accident appeared to be unavoidable.

Another automobile accident at 11:20 o'clock Monday morning resulted in the injury of an unidentified white man at Pryor street and Edgewood avenue.

The driver of the machine was L. F. Hudson, whose address does not appear on the report. Patrolman E. M. Cason made to Captain W. F. Terry.

Officer Cason rushed to the automobile to learn the identity of the driver as he struck down a man, and the injured man disappeared before the officer returned. Witnesses told the officer that he walked away as though he had not been hurt.

An automobile driven by an unidentified white man early Monday morning injured two employees of the Georgia Railway & Power company on Alabama street, between Whitehall and Pryor streets.

E. Cannon, one of those hurt, had to be given treatment at the Grady hospital. He suffered a severe cut on the head, beside bad bruises and scratches. His fellow-workman, T. T. McKinney, escaped with minor bruises.

Cannon was "protecting" an open manhole with a red flag at the time he was struck by the car, it is said. Officer J. A. Wright, who rushed to the scene of the accident, said he secured clues as to the identity of the driver, and an arrest would likely occur before Tuesday night.

ATLANTA FAVORED FOR BIG MEETING

Chairman Charles J. Haden is daily receiving favorable letters from members of the national democratic committee and leading democrats from various parts of the United States in response to letters soliciting their support for Atlanta for the meeting place of the 1924 national convention.

Mr. Haden is greatly pleased with the number pledging themselves to support Atlanta, and the numbers of others who assure him they are open to consider Atlanta's claim.

A letter received on Monday from Patrick H. Quinn, member from Rhode Island of the national democratic committee, reads as follows:

"Your very courteous letter of June 10 enclosing set of resolutions adopted at your meeting, June 1, relative to Atlanta as the democratic convention city for 1924 is received."

"For a dozen years I have been of the opinion that the democratic party should hold a national convention in the south if the south wanted it. Had Dallas gotten into the fight somewhat earlier three years ago, she might have taken the honor from California. Owing to the bid that New York is making for this convention, I do not want to be understood as pledging my vote to Atlanta until I know something about the sentiment of our prospective delegates, but I am still of the opinion that the south has done enough for the democratic party to entitle it to a national convention this year. And, of course, even a Rhode Islander knows that Atlanta is the imperial city of the south."

(Signed) "PATRICK H. QUINN."

Injunction to Halt Activities of I. W. W. In California Sought

Sacramento, Cal., July 16.—A petition for an injunction restraining the Industrial Workers of the World from functioning in this state was filed today in the civil department superior court by District Attorney J. J. Henderson, of Sacramento county, permission to sue in the name of the people of California having been granted by Attorney General Webb. The petition alleges that the I. W. W. is organized for the purpose of overthrowing the government of this country and of this state; that it teaches violence as a means of defeating capitalism; that members are taught that any unlawful act aimed to destroy capitalism is lawful; that many I. W. W. members have been coming to California during the last two months for the purpose of terrorizing the lumber, farm and oil industries. The injunction, if granted, will be effective in every superior court of the state and any person found carrying a membership card in the organization will be in contempt of court and subject to arrest and imprisonment. The delta of the Mississippi has just been surveyed by airplane photographs.

PRINCESS IS HELD IN ERHARDT'S ESCAPE

Munich, July 16.—Princess Marguerite, 29-year-old daughter of the late Prince Maximilian of Hohenlohe-Oehringen, is under arrest in connection with the case against Captain Erhardt, one of the leaders in the Kapp putsch, of 1920, who escaped last week from the Leipzig prison. The princess is alleged to have given refuge for two years to Erhardt while the authorities were hunting him. Her declaration that she did not know him has been made the basis for a charge of perjury, on which she will be tried beginning July 23, the date fixed for the trial of Erhardt himself. The net income of the Mexican postal department during the year 1922 amounted to 950,000 pesos.

CONVICTION OF GARVEY RESENTED BY NEGROES

Washington, July 16.—A united protest from many negroes throughout the country against the recent conviction in New York of Marcus Garvey, head of the Universal Negro Improvement association, was voiced today in scores of telegrams addressed to the Washington office of the Associated Press.

Each of the messages reported sentiments said to have been expressed at a negro mass meeting yesterday. They came from nearly every state, and were identical except for the number of persons reported as in attendance at each local meeting.

"We, loyal negro citizens of the United States," said each message, "in mass meeting assembled, beg to register with our white citizens through your protest against the injustice that has been done to Marcus Garvey."

President general of the Universal Negro Improvement association, his framed-up conviction in New York, and of denial of bail pending appeal. We sincerely hope that the white press of the country will turn on the searchlight of justice and thereby maintain the honor and glory of our fair institutions of justice."

Garvey was found guilty recently in federal court in New York on conspiracy growing out of a plan to establish a negro republic in Africa. Various protests have been made to the white house and department of justice, but the department has announced that no action will be taken which will interfere with the handling of the case by the district court.

Arrest Dispenser Of Love Potions On Fraud Charge

Showing that Uncle Sam has no faith in the ability of mystic powders to stimulate love, or the luck-giving properties of luckstones, postoffice inspectors have apprehended "Dr." W. Grant Thorpe, alleged love specialist, who is alleged to have used the mail to further the sale of such magical merchandise.

Thorpe was arrested in Greenville, S. C., last Friday, according to a telegram received here by Postoffice Inspector-in-Charge Joe P. Johnston from Inspector Mansfield.

The government takes the position that no affection-producing powder can be compounded and that the sale of any preparation claimed to arouse amorous feelings in one's adored one is fraud. Use of the mails to promote such sales is in violation of the postal laws, it is stated.

"Dr." W. Grant Thorpe is said to be about 60 years of age. Several months ago he visited several south Georgia towns, driving two large horses to a fine buggy, the vehicle having such up-to-date equipment as an electric horn, electric lights and an electric footwarmer. He is thought to have realized a handsome sum from the disposition of love powders, luckstones, lion-doo bags, etc.

While in Brunswick, Ga., early this year, it is said, his wife died. Shortly thereafter he married a 16-year-old Brunswick girl and took her to Hilliard, Fla., where he left his palatial rig. Later he was traced to Greenville, when he was found to be receiving mail there.

Monday added one more to the record of legislative days with no progress worth mentioning made toward solution of the taxation problems.

In the house, the entire time of Monday's session was taken up with debate on the resolutions for investigation of the state highway department, and even this question went over unsettled to again come up today.

The only sign of progress in the entire affair was the adoption of a resolution offered by Representative Barrett, of Stephens, requiring action on these resolutions within thirty minutes after they are next taken up.

The house, which resolved itself into a committee of the whole to consider the resolutions, resumed the debate where it stopped Saturday and, after two hours of hot argument, managed to amend the McMichael resolution so that it would cover the ground of the Beck resolution, and so as to withdraw the personal question involving the indictment of Representative McMichael, in Bibb county, on charges of libel preferred by Engineer Crosland.

Resolution Amended.

The senate resolution, which was adopted in the upper house, and which was introduced by Senator Pace of the Fifteenth, was also amended to provide for the employment of a stenographer and auditor by the committee, and to empower it to subpoena witnesses and demand the production of records and documents.

Speakers Monday were about evenly divided between the two resolutions, one line of thought holding out for the Pace resolution and the other for the McMichael, though the determination to investigate the department under some form of resolution appeared to be unanimous.

However, with the adoption of the Barrett resolution, limiting the time to be devoted to this subject to thirty minutes more, promise is seen of definite action to set this controversy on the way and clear the decks for action on the tax problems.

Several other angles were injected into the taxation situation on Monday and over the week-end. The announcement of the coming introduction of a new tax bill, written by Representative Bussey, of Crisp, aroused wide comment among the members and there developed during the day, in private conversations, a considerable following for this measure.

Exempts Farmer.

The Bussey bill, while it provides for a small income tax, exempts incomes derived from tillage of the soil, and depends for the bulk of its revenue upon taxes upon public service corporations, railroads and other corporations. All real and personal property would be relieved of taxation for state purposes under this bill.

Wimberly, of Toombs, introduced a new tax equalization law repeal bill, his measure specifying that the repeal shall be effective on January 1, 1925.

The purpose of this bill, as explained by its author, is to answer the demand for the repeal of the equalization law, and at the same time, meet the objections of those who want to see a new system of taxation provided before dropping the old method.

Mr. Wimberly believes that if his bill is passed and the legislators know that the equalization law will be dead on the specific date, that they will feel bound to provide new tax machinery by that date.

Pension Cuts Asked.

Another important piece of proposed legislation of Monday was contained in a group of bills introduced Monday by Kempton, of Fulton, and Harris, of Jefferson. The effect of these measures would be to put the pension laws of the state back to where they were before the passage of the pension act of 1920. This would mean that the "new classes," made eligible by that law, would be wiped out, that the $1,500, property bar would again be erected and that the original pensioners would receive the even $100 as before, without the annual increase of $25, up to $200 provided in the 1920 act.

Bennett, of Dodge, introduced a bill which brings up an issue of the recent Hardwick gubernatorial administration, in a bill to authorize the shipping of convicts in the state. This would require a constitutional amendment, under the ruling of the attorney general, rendered in the recent controversy between Governor Hardwick and the prison commission, and was referred to the committee on amendments to the constitution.

Another bill was also introduced to provide for biennial sessions of the legislature, by Moore, of Appling. This bill, however, sets the length of the session at 100 days every two years.

A bill by Camp, of Coweta, and others, would substitute a sales tax for all other occupation taxes.

half of it, saying "let's don't take all the poor fellow's," and then returned two quarters.

From the Georgian-Terrace the men directed Davis to drive them out Lee street to the Campbellton road. Turning in, they drove some distance, coming to a church just off the road.

"The man we want to see lives just behind this church," one of the bandits stated, asking Davis to turn into the side road.

Drive to Church.

"As they reached the church building, one of the two men poked me in ribs with the point of a pistol and they both cautioned me to be silent, at the same time demanding that I get out of the car and accompany them to the rear of the church. Both had guns pointed at me by this time," Davis said.

The black hand bag the men carried, and which was supposed to contain business papers, was found to contain the rope with which they tied Davis, hand and foot.

That the robbery was one which had been planned for several days is shown by the fact that one of the bandits appeared at the office of the Belle Isle company Friday and engaged the machine they stole, for Saturday morning, later cancelling this engagement and making the appointment for Monday morning at 8 o'clock.

PERSHING ACCEPTS INVITATION TO 'CUE

Anniston, Ala., July 16.—(Special.) Acceptance of the local American Legion post's invitation to attend a barbecue on July 26, while on his official visit to Camp McClellan, has been given by General John J. Pershing in a communication received by Colonel Harry M. Ayers, chairman of the barbecue committee, from Major General David C. Shanks, of Atlanta, commander of the Fourth Corps Area.

General Edwin B. Winans, commandant at Camp McClellan, and his staff together with other officers at the local post will be guests of the Legion post at the affair and civic organizations of the city have been invited to join with the ex-service men in entertaining the army chief. The barbecue will be held at the Anniston Country club.

A resolution was adopted inviting Comptroller General Walter E. Duncan, of South Carolina, to address the general assembly on the subject of operation of the graduated and income tax system in his state. The house, however, did not pass the resolution, and under the rules of the two bodies, unless the house branch votes to reconsider and passes the resolution, the invitation cannot be extended.

A heated fight looms in the senate over adoption of Senator Lanford's measure providing for an income tax not to exceed five per cent; the classification tax measure favorably reported by the senate's finance committee, and the proposed measure by Representative Bussey which has been offered as a substitute for both taxation measures.

The Bussey plan would revise the methods of taxation so as to authorize the raising of state's revenues from ad valorem taxation not to exceed two and one-half per cent on properties of railroads and other public utility properties; imposition of a franchise tax on foreign and domestic corporations; a tax on gross premiums of insurance and bonding companies, a graduated income tax not to exceed five per cent; imposition of a tax on securities and other intangible properties, and a tax on gasoline, tobacco, soft drinks, toilet articles and other luxuries.

Provides Income Tax.

Senator Lanford's measure provides for submission of a constitutional amendment which would permit the general assembly to impose an income tax not to exceed five per cent. This bill was reported favorably last week by the senate's finance committee.

Twelve hundred people, including thirty who had come for healing of their bodies, attended the opening of "faith healing" revival services being conducted by Rev. Raymond T. Richey at the city auditorium Monday night. Rev. Richey was welcomed by Attorney General George M. Naper, and J. L. McCord also spoke.

The text chosen by the evangelist was: "Call unto Me and I will answer thee and show thee the great and mighty things which thou knowest not." Jer. 33:3.

Rev. Mr. Richey was to have spoken in Indianapolis, but the tabernacle was not available there and he decided to come to Atlanta. He will be here for five weeks. He is well known in the middle west where he preached for three years. He DELIVERANCE.—For he shall deliver the needy when he crieth; the poor also, and him that hath no helper.—Psalm 72:12.

PEAK OF RADICALISM.

Some of the tax remedies proposed to cure Georgia's revenue ills are infinitely worse than the disease. They appear to be based upon the idea that a quick execution is better than a long convalescence; and they unwittingly propose to kill Georgia, and thus stop all the worrying.

One of the most radical of these is the proposed amendment that Representative Bussey has introduced.

It at least has the virtue of directness for it proposes to shut the door of every industry in the state, scrap the utilities, and close up the banks, all at one stroke; and it does not equivocate or side-step the frank and open plan for doing so.

Of course Mr. Bussey doesn't intend deliberately to do all of these things. On the contrary, perhaps, he may argue that his measure will have a constructive rather than a destructive tendency.

However this may be, any analyst of legislative radicalism in this country will immediately concede to the gentleman from Crisp a preeminence in authorship that makes La Follette and Shipstead and the Non-Partisan Leaguers of the Dakotas look like pikers.

Mr. Bussey proposes the partial abolition of the state ad valorem, and the substitution not only of a 5 per cent limit general income tax, but a new ad valorem tax of 25 mills upon the properties of all railroad and public service corporations, plus an additional tax of "from 1 to 2 per cent upon the gross receipts of such corporations," and then swings around to banks with a 1 per cent tax on capital; and to insurance and bond companies with a 1 1/2 per cent on gross premiums; and so on.

It is unnecessary to discuss the merits, or rather demerits, of this proposal. Georgia is not a state of socialism. The legislators have not followed wildly after the I. W. W.'s that have cursed some sections of the immigrant northwest.

Of course the Georgia legislature will not tolerate any proposal that will tear up the rails of every utility line in Georgia, and close the doors of every factory.

Georgia has tax troubles. She needs a sound and conservative revision of her present system. But she will not tolerate any proposal that will penalize progress and stifle development.

The Bussey bill would kill Georgia, and turn every Georgia farm into weed fields in less than five years.

It is important to approach this tax problem with a sincere and unselfish determination to help Georgia and to help all elements of Georgians.

If politics and prejudices are permitted to become factors in the tax deliberations, the result will be to put the state deeper "in the hole" than it has already been pushed by an outgrown tax system.

The patient is sick, but in treating him it is well enough to keep in view the fact that curing is one thing and killing quite another.

A GROWING MENACE.

The killing of a 9-year-old boy and the serious if not fatal injury of his brother by an automobile, in the suburbs of Atlanta, and on one of Fulton's widest and best paved thoroughfares, accentuates a condition that is rapidly becoming intolerable in this city—the menace of the irresponsible automobile driver.

More stringent laws carrying heavy jail sentences and fines for the flagrant violation of sensible traffic regulations must be made, and in these enactments it must be provided that lenient judges cannot outwit them by giving light punishments.

If the condition now existing, not only in Atlanta but all over Georgia, continues there will be only one recourse and that is a law requiring every car owner to give a substantial bond for the protection of the public, this bond to be certified to the secretary of state before the license tag is issued.

This will be a hardship on the great majority of automobile owners who are careful and who employ careful and dependable drivers in order to help protect the public from the menace of the reckless and irresponsible owner or driver, but it is one of those cases where the many must suffer for the sins of the few in order to rectify, in part at least, an unbearable condition.

It is to be hoped such a law will not become necessary, but it is imperative that the traffic laws be rigidly enforced, and before this legislature adjourns the minimum penalties should be so fixed that immunities from punishment may not be secured from the trial judges.

When a car driver or chauffeur has been adjudged guilty of reckless driving, or driving under the influence of liquor, or of any major offense against traffic laws by which lives and limbs of others are menaced, he should not only be punished, according to law, but should be prohibited by law from driving a car again, of his own or for another, for a fixed period of time. And this legal inhibition should have teeth enough to punish severely in case of violation.

This problem of reckless driving is not one to be temporized with.

ATLANTA'S CHAMPION.

Bobby Jones, the new open golf champion of America, will be given a rousing reception today when he reaches Atlanta, his home city. This is eminently appropriate.

There is no cleaner or more popular field sport in the world than golf, and America has never had a champion who reflected more honor upon the game, or who came out of a decisive contest with cleaner hands, or with a more brilliant record.

In passing from the amateur to the professional championship he was pitted against a master golfer; and in defeat Cruikshank proved as glorious a loser as he has always proved himself a great fighter, and a fine sportsman.

That this title has come to Atlanta is no surprise to those who have watched the marvelous record of Bobby Jones, and his equally creditable personal deportment at all times and under all circumstances.

It was a thrilling match—the decisive game of the tournament—and no less an authority than the brilliant young Scotchman who lost declared the Atlanta boy the greatest champion of them all.

Atlanta is proud to honor Bobby Jones, and to welcome him home.

ON LITTLE CHILDREN.

The sages say that a man who loves dogs and little children may be set down as a good citizen. And the reverse is equally true, for both dogs and children are excellent judges of character. They know more than we think they do.

It may be that the sports of children satisfy the child, but the answers that many grownups give to children's questions quite often do not satisfy the child.

Some children mature faster than do others; some, from association with the more knowing of their own age, learn things they are not supposed to know. Then they begin to ask questions, and they are usually rewarded by being put off—or deceived. When a child is old enough, or mature enough, or knowing enough, to ask a sensible question, he should be given a sensible answer.

The custom of having Santa Claus come every Christmas is a fine one, and grown folks hang their stockings over the fireplace alongside the sock of the youngest in the family—and get much real pleasure from it. But when that youngest grows up to be old enough to ask, "Daddy, aren't you Santa Claus?" there should be no further deception.

The same principle should apply to more serious matters.

Ignorance is the father of all vice, and yet parents can not or will not tell their children of the temptations and dangers they must face.

Furthermore, in learning of these things through whispers, the child gets a distorted outlook on everything. The highest things at once become synonymous with the lowest.

It may sound absurd to the sophisticated, but when a boy, who has been deceived about Santa Claus and babies, and has had to learn the truth for himself—when he finds that religion itself rests in great measure on faith—then his world begins to crumble under his feet.

More than likely he will build it back again, but he must start with the foundation. And his parents, who should have helped him to build a firm foundation from the days of his youth, have successfully shielded him from the world—and from God.

There is no faith more beautiful than the faith of little children, unless it be that of old colored mammys, who know that the streets of heaven are paved with solid gold. Let us not then, through deception in small things, fail to protect our children to the way of honor and the path of truth.

In honoring the men who wore the gray, and the women of the south who sacrificed and suffered, unmatched devotion, you are also erecting a monument to the common glory of our common country," said William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury of the United States, in a letter to Hollins N. Randolph, president of the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial association, enclosing a check for $1,000 in full payment of his "Founders' Roll" subscription made a few weeks ago.

When Mr. McAdoo was in Atlanta a few months ago on his way to Augusta, Mr. Randolph tendered him a luncheon at the Capital City club, and in the course of his speech on that occasion Mr. McAdoo expressed his great interest in the memorial. While here he authorized Mr. Randolph to announce a "Founders' Roll" subscription of $1,000.

Mr. McAdoo's letter accompanying his check in payment of that subscription is as follows:

Dear Mr. Randolph:
It is with genuine pleasure that I enclose a check for $1,000 as a contribution to the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial.

In so doing, please permit me to congratulate you not alone upon the beginning of actual work on the monument by that eminent sculptor, Gutzon Borglum, but upon the devotion of the south who sacrificed and suffered with a devotion and valor unequalled by those who won their blood upon the fields of battle; and that, in honoring them and the soldiers of the Confederacy, you are erecting a monument also to the glory of our common country. BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MINTYRE

New York, June 16.—Almost the final touch of the Bowery's old glamour is to be seen in the scarred old barber shops that somehow survive the sweep of progress. There are three that have signs in their window reading: "Cupping Done Here!" Outside are the old-time barber poles which symbolize the blood, the barbers are under board of health regulations, and can make no incisions, but must resort to what surgical science knows as "dry cupping."

There are hundreds of people on the Bowery who have faith in blood-letting. They go to be "cupped" for headaches, colds and rheumatism. Blood is drawn from inflamed parts by a vacuum. It is said to be quite painless.

In such shops only the head barber is permitted to "cup." He is rather scholarly and scientific-looking, with a white linen suit, a white shirt and a white necktie. The charge is from $2 to $5, and there are no charge accounts. The Bowery clings to its old-fashioned barber shops. The proprietors are usually from Poland or Italy, where the barber is still recognized as a surgeon. When the Bowery was a two-fisted fighting street of swinging doors and tin pianos, every barber advertised some cure or other for "black eyes."

"Shiner" Keller, who won his sobriquet by his ability to "unmount" the eye, had an upstairs room over a drug store a few paces from McGuirk's Suicide hall, and employed twenty men. In the early morning he used to treat as many as fifty patients who had run afoul of bungler or bouncer's luckless in the roaring street.

Now the "black eye" is mostly indigenous to Broadway, and is collected by young colleagians who have come to town to whoop things up and receive a back-hand slap from some doorman or carriage starter whom they "sass."

Speaking of bootblacks, one has installed a rather stylish stand on Seventh avenue, near Forty-second street. It is in the shape of a Venetian gondola, with rippling water of paper mache about the sides. Two patron steps on a seat that is under a flashing little canopy, and the shoes are polished. The bootblack wears the uniform of a gondolier.

Big hotels object to uniformed chauffeurs standing about entrances. But one has solved the problem in a rather nice way. They have fitted up a rest room for them in the basement, and here they are called by a special attendant when needed by employers. (Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution.)

THE MINARET

OF MINIATURE MASTERPIECES

HOP ABOARD!
Before the phantom of false morning died
A voice atop the Minaret that cried,
"Hey, all the literati are within,
"Why nobs the lazy scribbler outside!"

TO THE MODERN GIRL.
She wears her hair, also her skirts,
As style demands. She often flirts;
Steps on the gas, in frequent spurts;
But a woman's a woman, for a' that.

And when square in the heart she's hit,
She'll settle down, and do her bit—
In her old age, a' it and kni;
For a woman's a woman, for a' that.

"How often does your street car kill a man?" asked a traveling salesman of a conductor.
"Once," replied the conductor, solemnly.

APPOLO TO THE "DIVING BELL."
Down to the submarine to the bottom of the sea,
There lies the funniest sight the fishes have to see;
They had a classy bar, all built of sunken ships,
The keeper was an olly whale, a shark got all the tips.

They came by thousands from afar,
Their faces broad with grin;
But the queerest sight I saw there
They shook hands with their fins.

I saw some lovely mermaids, to catch them
Was my first aim, and I was not alone;
But they were slick and slippery, you can't hold on to a fish.
They came up close to the submarine, this wonder of the sea.

Nice little mermaids, pretty little mermaids,
All very willing at me,
They drank from pearly oyster shells, rare wines and beer on tap.
No cops, no laws, no restraint, they didn't give a rap!

I'd give my all in all, each dollar without fail,
If I could be a great big fish with a nice long floppy tail.
They gathered 'round in multitudes, all standing on their tails,
They crowded up about the bar and rested on the rails.

"Why, Bridget," exclaimed the mistress as the cook barked in stewed chicken, "I told you plainly to smother that chicken."
"Sure, missus, and I did. I done so dat chicken and smothered it with a pillow."

HEALTH TALKS
BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

IN THE VERNACULAR.
I have lately suffered some of my own medicine because of my obstinate insistence on the term coryza (cory-ah) the accent on the eye, in place of the popular "cold in the head."

It seems that everybody knows just what "cold in the head" means, just what causes it and everything; for me to insist that it be called any other name is merely to confuse the laity. I plead not guilty, with extermination. My base motive is to prevent confusion of the laity.

If the term "cold," as popularly employed, referred exclusively to the disease or ailment which I insist on calling coryza, it wouldn't be so objectionable, though it is certainly misleading, since the disease is an infectious or communicable one, and has no bearing upon exposure to cold. But, unfortunately, the term "cold" includes a whole series of diseases, not alone of the upper part of the breathing tract, but some very serious systemic diseases as well (such as pneumonia, measles, influenza); when such diseases are permitted to masquerade or to gain headway under the name of "a cold," it is high time to discard that misleading term, in my judgment.

I have just learned, after several years of utter ignorance, that "weak ankles" in the vernacular stands for pronation in the medical. I suppose this will seem foolish to those who happen to know. But it is a fact that I have never, until now, realized that what folks meant when they complained of "weak ankles," although I have always had a working knowledge of pronation. This goes to show how deep the chasm is between medical parlance and the vernacular, and how greatly we need in our technical training a course in vernacular medicine. We need it in order to understand the patient's history. We need it quite as much as the man in the street needs a little dash of scientific information concerning health and other matters of welfare.

Just what does the layman mean when he complains that his "head is aching" or that he "wants something to 'clear the complexion'?" I am not quite sure, yet, but I begin to suspect he means he has some pimples.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
How a Girl Will Get There.
I am a girl aged 15 years, with good health. I have had one year's high school work. My home is in Kentucky. I mean to become a nurse, and do not want to spend time on unessential studies. Please give me any information or advice you can about training schools for nurses.—G. M.

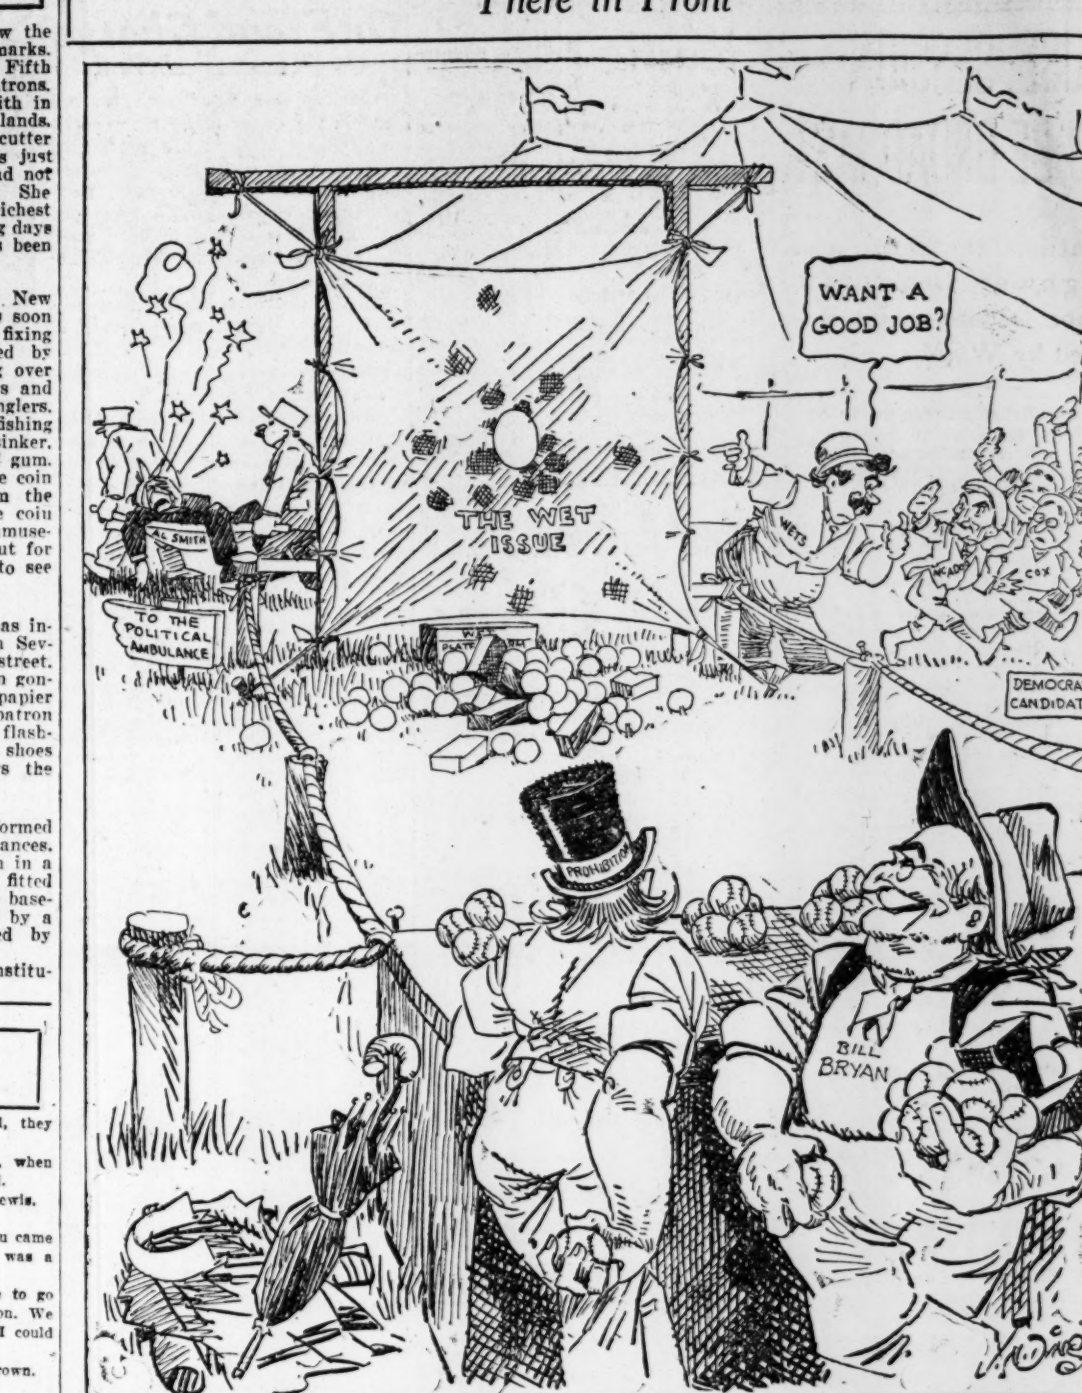

Answer—(Auntie!) There is no finer calling for a young woman. I think from the way you write that you will succeed. Be sure to get a physical education, if not in school, then on your own, for health is essential. Many training schools require the pupil to have a complete high school course, or for authority to take information concerning training schools. I would refer you to American Schools Association, 1515-M Capital building, Chicago, Ill., or to H. M. Times building, New York, N. Y.

Hazy.
Two years ago I had an X-ray picture made of my lungs and the specialist said that the lower end of my left lung was just the least bit hazy. Then I was examined by a doctor recommended me by the Anti-Tuberculosis association and he said I did not have tuberculosis, and he was sure of it. But I've worried.

Answer—Why worry? Ask the tax collector to receive county stock beyond $2,000,000. By Green, of the 43rd: To make communications between physicians and their patients confidential and not to be used as evidence in courts. By Chastain, of the 41st: To strike section of school laws requiring each county to have an attendance officer.

"Radio Mockingbird" Plans Farewell Concert Tonight

Nora Allen to Give Final Radio Concert Before Leaving for Chicago to Visit Parents.

The 9:30 broadcast from Station WGM tonight, sponsored by Signor E. Volpi, will present one of the south's most sensational lyric sopranos, Nora Allen, in addition to Miss Maude M. Eberhardt, pianist; Frank Day, flutist, and Rudolph Lehman, baritone. Miss Allen has created a furore in musical circles of the south, having appeared on numerous occasions in concert and several times at leading theatres of Atlanta. She was formerly connected with the Chicago Grand Opera company and has undergone exhaustive vocal training. Hers is a voice that is fully possessed with remarkable quality and her renditions are given with the perfect ease and sympathetic interpretation of the finished artist. She has earned the title of "The Radio Mockingbird."

Her appearance tonight at Station WGM will be her final radio concert for some time, as she is leaving in the near future for a visit to her relatives in Chicago. Listeners will thrill to the exquisite beauty of her voice in the classical selections which she will offer on the 9:30 broadcast.

Miss Eberhardt is well known in Atlanta as a teacher of piano and her offerings are always heartily welcomed. She will give several classical piano solos and will share honors with Signor Volpi in the piano accompaniments for the vocal numbers.

Frank Day is a recent addition to the staff of WGM's artists, and has become a great favorite with listeners. His flute solos are always rendered with the finish and perfection of the skilled artist and his offerings tonight will be features of the broadcast.

Rudolph Lehman has caused favorable comment among voice critics with his wonderfully-trained baritone voice, and a large amount of credit for his success is due to the efforts of his instructor, Signor Volpi. He will be heard in a number of selections that are well adapted for his type of voice.

Signor Volpi, one of the outstanding figures in the musical world of Atlanta, will play the piano accompaniments for several of the songs. His return to Station WGM after a brief absence will be greeted with a hearty welcome.

Simultaneously with one of the best programs they have ever given from Station WGM, The Atlanta Constitution, came the announcement at six o'clock last night that the Footwarmers, popular Atlanta dance orchestra will play all of next week at the Howard theater.

The announcement came from Bill Munn, musical director, and Phil Schoenbeck, business manager. This places the Footwarmers in a new class for a Howard theater engagement.

The offer from the Howard theater came after Atlanta listeners to Station WGM's broadcast of the Footwarmers had requested the personal appearance of the Footwarmers. The program which the Footwarmers gave last evening between six and seven o'clock featured three soloists: Miss Mary Munn, soprano; Bill Munn and Mortimer Hazlehurst, trumpet for the Footwarmers. All of them were fine and gave variety to the program of selections.

Miss Munn sang "Vale" and "Some Day, Some Time," with piano accompaniment by Bill Munn, while Bill Munn sang "The Rosary," accompanied by his sister at the piano. Mortimer Hazlehurst gave a trumpet solo, "Somewhere a Voice is Calling."

The orchestration which the Footwarmers gave last evening numbered nearly a dozen. They were given in the best of shape and included "Railroad Man," "Rose of the Rio Grande," "Yes, We Have No Bananas," "Who's Sorry Now," "Louisville Lou," "Who's Telling," "Take Your Time," "You've Got to See Mama Every Night," "Sweet Lovin' Mamma," "Way Down Yonder in New Orleans" and "You Tell Her, I Stutter."

Fight Promoters Squabble Given By Station WGM
An unusual attraction was broadcast by Station WGM Monday night when full details of the fight program staged at Ponce de Leon park, including the last-minute plans that were carried out when the main bout of the evening was called off between Captain Bob Roper and Jeff Smith.

Following the refusal of the stellar principals to mingle blows and while the promoters were endeavoring to substitute others on the program to take the place of Roper and Smith, Station WGM took the air and kept its listeners posted on the progress of the wrangle.

Complete details of four sensational rounds between Tim O'Dowd and Lew Silver, both Atlanta celebrities in the arena, who were rushed in at the 11th hour, were given, radiohone listeners by Station WGM. In the second round when Silver had O'Dowd hanging on in rapid succession to prevent a knockout, every detail was broadcast from the ringside and several fans called WGM to say they even heard the applause and yells of the audience.

It was a decided success on the part of Station WGM, despite the fact that the principal bout was called off. Details of the fight were capably handled by Cliff Wheatley, sports editor of The Constitution, who made his debut as a radiohone announcer.

WARNER'S ACES ON DECK AT WGM

Popular Atlanta Orchestra Will Be Heard at the Early Hour Tonight on Constitution Station.

Warner's Seven Aces, staff orchestra of Station WGM, will be assembled in the studio tonight at the early hour all set to entertain listeners with their orchestrations, given in the "true Warner" style, which has made them the most popular dance orchestra in radiohone.

The success of The Aces has been phenomenal. They have achieved a record that would be hard to equal. In addition to playing for radio fans, they have played engagements at several of the theaters of Atlanta and have a number of records for the "Mighty Lak" a Rose" with her own variations, which was recorded recently in New York. In response to a long distance call from Canton, Ga., she sang the first aria from the first act of "Lucia di Lammermoor," playing her own piano accompaniment.

Miss Banknight sponsored the program and again delighted her audience with her snappy jazz piano accompaniment.

With the appearance of The Constitution Orchestra, listeners are always pleased and tonight's offering will be up to the standard it has been the custom of Mr. Warner to present from the studio of Station WGM. Listeners are invited to request numbers of The Aces and they will be given at the earliest date possible.

MRS. MATHEWS AFTERNOON STAR

Mrs. Chas. Maddux, Dewey Keenan, and Jimmy Finley Will Support the Popular WGM Artists.

During the absence of the Atlanta baseball team from the home grounds, Station WGM will not broadcast detailed baseball results on its afternoon broadcasts, but will offer instead musical programs that will be of interest to listeners.

The 3 o'clock broadcast this afternoon is sponsored by Mrs. Rose L. Mathews, who will be supported by Mrs. Charles Maddux, Dewey Keenan and Jimmy Finley.

Mrs. Mathews has come to be known as one of the nation's radio celebrities and has been heard on numerous occasions during the past few months. Her voice is one of exceptional flexibility and range, making it possible for her to sing with utmost facility the difficult selections it is her custom to present.

Mrs. Mathews is comparatively recent addition to WGM's staff of artists, but has achieved wide popularity with fans which increases with every appearance at WGM. Her offerings this afternoon will be of the semi-classical type and promise to be distinct features of the broadcast.

Dewey Keenan, a member of the Troubadours of the Atlanta lodge of Elks, has become a favorite through the medium of his well-modulated tenor voice.

Jimmy Finley, staff pianist of Station WGM, requires no introduction to radio enthusiasts, having been heard regularly from this station for a number of months. Jimmy will give several piano solos in addition to the accompaniments for the vocal numbers.

MONDAY PROGRAM PRESENTS STARS

Quintet of Artists Entertains Fans on 3 O'Clock Broadcast From Station WGM.

Resuming the broadcast of musical programs in the afternoon due to the absence of the Atlanta baseball team from the home grounds, Station WGM presented a quintet of artists on the 3 o'clock program yesterday afternoon, including Miss Madalena Hauff, coloratura soprano; Miss Edna Banknight, pianist; Miss Evelyn Youngblood, soprano; Cecil Sullivan, violinist, and Bishop Foreman, saxophonist.

Miss Hauff demonstrated her versatility at the early hour by "entertaining" fans both with her vocal and pianistic abilities. She is a talented pianist, with a technique that is exceptional and an interpretation symbolic of the master. She played "Mighty Lak" a Rose" with her own variations, which was recorded recently in New York. In response to a long distance call from Canton, Ga., she sang the first aria from the first act of "Lucia di Lammermoor," playing her own piano accompaniment.

Miss Banknight sponsored the program and again delighted her audience with her snappy jazz piano accompaniment.

With the appearance of The Constitution Orchestra, listeners are always pleased and tonight's offering will be up to the standard it has been the custom of Mr. Warner to present from the studio of Station WGM. Listeners are invited to request numbers of The Aces and they will be given at the earliest date possible.

Miss Youngblood sang "Yes, We Have No Bananas," "Louisville Lou," by request, and "Carolina Mammy." Pete Sullivan, violinist and trumpeter with the Footwarmers' orchestra of Atlanta, gave two delightful violin solos, "A Perfect Kiss" and "Runnin' Wild."

Bishop Foreman presented one of the most difficult saxophone solos written in some time, "Valse," displaying a mastery of his instrument and perfect confidence of his skill. He also played the popular number "Don't Think You'll Be Missed." He is also a member of the Footwarmers' orchestra.

WOMEN ADVISED TO LIFT BOYCOTT PLACED ON SUGAR
New York, July 16.—Housewives took part in the recent consumers' strike to force sugar prices down are advised to lift the boycott and buy sugar with reasonable freedom for canning and other purposes in a letter from Mr. Julian Heath, president of the National Housewives league, made public today.

"In my judgment," Mrs. Heath wrote, "the housewife may gradually and carefully resume her sugar buying and can her usual supply of fruit. The gradual resumption of buying will produce a steady market and thus avoid a violent rise again in sugar prices."

"The housewife must look far ahead to the possible increase in price of commercial-canned fruits if there be no home competition. We also have another function to fill, the absorption of the crops lest the farmers lose and their loss be reflected next year."

Sanitary Conditions In Havana Reported To Be Little Improved
Havana, Cuba, July 16.—Sanitary conditions in Havana are little improved, notwithstanding the fact that 500 convicts, guarded by 350 state troops, are engaged in an effort to clear the streets of garbage. Unless early action is had the city's health will be jeopardized within the next few days. Some attempts have been made to burn the garbage along the sidewalks with little success. Scavengers and garbage men are on strike for pay increase, the rate they have been working for being $2 for both day and night work. The city's garbage is loaded on barges and dumped into the Gulf ten miles off shore, two large barges being employed constantly in the work.

New York, July 16.—And now Izzy Einstein and Moe Smith, much disguised prohibition agents, have turned fishermen.

This became known today when proprietors of two hotels in Freeport, Long Island, and one bartender were held in Brooklyn on charges of violating the Volstead act.

Dressed as fishermen, the dry agents said they had appeared at the Silver Wave and Sea Breeze hotels and hired boats "with all the requisites." It was the requisites of a damp nature, that called for the arrests.

Stereotypers' Union Meets in Convention In Omaha, Nebraska
Omaha, Neb., July 16.—Delegates to the twenty-second annual convention of the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Union of North America were here today for their opening session. Renewal of an arbitration agreement with the American Newspaper Publishers' association, which expired April 30, 1922, was said to be the chief matter to be discussed.

In his address, James J. Freel, of Caldwell, N. JEFF SMITH-BOB O'DOWD FIGHTER WALKER ABOUT AT PONCEY

But Silver and O'Dowd Go 10 Fast Rounds Settling Old Score—Silver is Winner

O'Dowd Makes Great Comeback After Being Almost Knocked Out in Second Round—Wilson-Flinn Bout Fails.

BY CLIFF WHEATLEY.

Nothing but the keen desire of Atlanta fans to see the question of supremacy between Lew Silver and Tim O'Dowd settled beyond dispute saved the boxing game in Atlanta from a blow that would have proved fatal last night at the Poncey de Leon ball park when Jeff Smith, of Bayonne, N. J., and Captain Bob Roper, of various points east, declined to enter the arena for the small amount of money they could spot in the box office.

The "surprise bout" between Silver and O'Dowd, hatched hurriedly following a challenge hurled toward the latter's camp by Max Abelson, Silver's manager, was one of the best ever staged in Atlanta and went to Lew by a wide margin after ten rounds of glove tossing, O'Dowd's remarkable comeback after being almost counted out in the second round being the outstanding feature.

The struggle prevented Dr. P. L. Provano from going down in Atlanta's record of sports as the promoter of the most colossal "bust" in the history of the ring game, and it provided additional proof that the past time must either be regulated by a commission of some sort, or the fight-making game be given reasonable assurance that they are to see the fights they paid for.

Plenty of Talk.

There was more announcing than fighting until Silver and O'Dowd took the spotlight. More activity was expended by various volunteers than is displayed at the annual session of the state legislature and all because ample provision had not been made in advance to see that the card could go through as had been advertised.

And with every announcement cause for additional disappointment was given the patronage, for it usually meant that still another of the advertised bouts had gone over the boards. The result was that of five bouts listed on the original draft of Monday's schedule, but two went through.

"Boots" Antley, of Columbus, gave Billy Dale, Atlanta youngster, a severe drubbing in eight rounds and Charles Wilson, of Birmingham, and another of Atlanta, fought a six-round draw, but these were the only fights of the five that had been so extensively "smoked up" to materialize.

Silver-Flinn Bout Fails.

Lew Silver, matched to meet Jack Flinn, of Philadelphia, in a ten-round, figured in the first fight. Flinn failed to make his appearance. This announcement was not well received. It was then that the crowd to the battle between Terry McHugh, New Jersey bantamweight, and Claude Wilson, of Birmingham, had been called off when still another Collins, of Atlanta, fought a six-round draw, but these were the only fights of the five that had been so extensively "smoked up" to materialize.

The decision to put on Silver and O'Dowd came as a complete shock to the fans, who knew something of the efforts several Atlanta promoters had made previously to bring them together. The way was paved for this bout when Announcer Joe Gallagher told the spectators that Max Abelson, Silver's manager, had $250 for O'Dowd if he would come to terms for a bout in the near future.

Accepts Challenge.

James A. Mayson, O'Dowd's pilot, was at the ringside and immediately jumped into the arena with the state motto on his chest and offered to fight Silver and there if given the $250. The money was quickly handed over to Mayson, but another hitch developed when it became known that a certain Atlanta promoter had offered O'Dowd $750 for his end for a fight later with Silver. The crowd missed as Mayson declared he would not permit his boy to fight unless "Tim's" guarantee was boosted to this figure.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 16.—A line drive of this speaker's bat hit pitcher Joe Bush on the left hand, the fifth inning of the second game, forcing Bush to quit. MAKES OFFER TO DEMPSEY

New York, July 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—The heavyweight boxing outlook took an unexpected turn late today when Promoter Tex Rickard announced a definite proposal to stage a title match between Jack Dempsey, the champion, and Luis Angel Firpo, in the capital of the second largest nation in Argentina, Buenos Aires, about November 1.

Firpo, keenly anxious to fight for the highest of fight honors before the end of the year, has accepted Rickard's terms. The Argentine, a titleholder's manager, discussed details of the proposition with Rickard for an hour this afternoon and at the close of the conference told the promoter his answer would be ready by Wednesday.

Rickard said his plan to take the fight out of this country was prompted by two reasons—Firpo's desire to return to his native country for the bout and enthusiastic reports from the promoter's agents as to the possibilities of financial success in the Paris of South America.

Rickard had had representatives in the Argentine for some time, looking over the ground, but just after Firpo's knockout victory over Jess Willard at Boyles' Thirty Acres a few days ago, he indicated that he had abandoned the project in favor of a fight because of the probable risk involved. However, he received called today that helped after his mind, one of them from Juan Lopez, a personal agent, saying that a fight between Firpo and either Dempsey or Harry Wills, negro contender, would draw more money than any other fight in the world.

The exact nature of his offer to Rickard was not revealed but it was believed it embraced a percentage proposition that would assure the champion and his manager close to $250,000.

Kearns, meanwhile, declared that although he would give Rickard's offer every consideration, he was desirous of considering, if possible, two matches for the champion in this country this year instead of going to South America. Kearns said he preferred to have Dempsey meet Firpo first around Labor Day and then if victorious take on Wills just before the world's series in October.

AMERICUS TO GET JACKSON

Americus, Ga., July 16 (Special).—Joe Jackson, former Chicago White Sox player and one of those accused in the great "slugging" scandal, will play in Americus Tuesday, according to Tom Bell, manager of the Americus team.

Other teams in the south Georgia circuit which is under the management of organized baseball, are protesting the playing of Jackson and say his presence on the Americus team may affect the future of every player in the circuit. So interested have some of the teams become that a wire was sent Judge K. M. Landis, supreme baseball arbiter, asking his opinion of the subject.

Early tonight no answer had been received, and it was announced positively that Jackson will play here tomorrow against Dawson.

OVER 40 STATES ARE REPRESENTED AT KLAN MEETING

Asheville, N. C., July 16.—The Ku Klux Klan met here tonight in every state of the Union, high officials in conference here stayed tonight. More than forty states are represented at the conference, which is considering for the future in its history, women are represented at the Klan meeting, they being members of the recently formed ladies of the Ku Klux Klan.

The meeting here is said to be the forerunner of similar annual meetings of grand dragons and great things for considering the work of the organization.

FIGHT FANS Must Be Protected

One of two things is going to happen to the fight game in Atlanta: It's going to be stopped by law or by the non-support of the fans themselves if there are a few more repetitions of the occurrence of last night, when five fights were extensively advertised and the two main events, the windup and the semi-windup, failed to materialize.

Without attempting to place the blame and without discrediting the substituted main bout, the sporting department of The Constitution advertised and for which they have spent real money to see the bouts advertised and for which they have spent real money to see the bouts advertised and for which they have spent real money to see the bouts advertised.

The Constitution's sporting department wants to see a continuance of boxing in Atlanta. It believes such a continuance is contingent upon keeping faith with the fans.

In future, The Constitution will not lend its columns to the promotion of boxing matches unless reasonable assurance has been offered, either by the provision of forfeitures or some other method insuring the good faith of the contenders.

In pursuing this policy the sporting department of The Constitution believes it will be of real service to the fight fans of Atlanta.

SEVEN INSPECTORS RESTORED PLACES

City council and the aldermanic board Monday restored to their former positions all seven of the sanitary inspectors whose jobs were abolished July 1 by the June finance appointment sheet. The seven inspectors had been retained up to Saturday by special provision of the finance committee and had been notified formally of their dismissal Saturday afternoon.

The resolutions restoring them to their former positions, duties and pay were introduced by Councilman Pennington, vice chairman of the sanitary committee, and passed by council, 10 to 6. It purported to provide the funds with which to pay the seven inspectors during the rest of this year. The aldermanic board concurred without dissent from any of the seven members present.

Mayor Walter A. Sims declined Monday night to comment on the action of council and the aldermanic board until he has had an opportunity to inspect the provisions of the resolution.

The seven inspectors were among the 50 city employees dropped by the June finance sheet on recommendation of experts who surveyed all city departments with a view to suggesting economies. After the sheet had been presented, dropping the 50, council amended it to restore the entire number. Mayor Sims vetoed the amendment and council, at its session July 2, sustained the veto. His subsequent action Monday was also in the form of an amendment to the June appointment sheet.

After sustaining the resolution of council restoring the seven inspectors, the aldermanic board Monday formally passed the June appointment sheet, which had been held up for two weeks by motion of Alderman Carpenter. July 2 asking reconsideration. Alderman Carpenter had based his opposition to the sheet on the dropping of the sanitary inspectors and, when they had been reinstated, he did not press his motion.

The sanitary department was to begin work Tuesday on its new basis with eight inspectors mounted on horseback and one, downtown, working on foot. Original plans to begin inspection Monday on that basis were delayed when Chief of Police James L. Beavers refused to honor the requirement for eight police horses until council approved the order.

Authorized Transfer.

Before Councilman Pennington's resolution was introduced, council had formally authorized the transfer of horses. Because the amendment reinstating the men will not be effective until Mayor Sims signs it, the sanitary department is expected to start Tuesday morning on the basis provided in the original June finance sheet.

Council also amended its economy program Monday insofar as one automobile in the electrical inspection department is concerned. The automobile, taken from the department by the June sheet, was returned for use of electrical inspectors.

The widow of Robert S. Hilley, veteran sanitary inspector, who died recently, was voted his full pay for the rest of 1923 on joint recommendation of the finance and sanitary committees. Several members of council spoke in praise of Mr. Hilley.

Council defeated a move by Alderman Armstrong to get four additional automobiles for the police department in exchange for the horses transferred to the sanitary department.

Disabled Veterans Plan New Fight in Congress

Washington, July 16.—A legislative program calling for adjusted compensation for war veterans and affecting their rehabilitation, hospital care and insurance will be presented upon congress when it convenes in December, by the Disabled American Veterans of the World War. The program, based on recommendations adopted by the third annual convention of the organization, held recently at Minneapolis, was announced here today.

The proposals provide a rating of total permanent disability for veterans who have been given care for twelve consecutive months, and that all veterans so rated, and those being treated at home, shall receive the same family allowance as given veterans' bureau trainees. An effort also will be made to have all veterans recommended for permanent total disability rating tried on this roll temporarily pending final award. Total disability ratings will be sought for men entitled to treatment at home, and for those with a rating of 50 per cent permanent disability will be asked for men discharged from hospitals with diagnosis of arrested or quiescent tuberculosis.

Amendment of the civil service laws will be proposed to place disabled veterans who attain a passing grade in an examination at the head of the eligible list.

Aid for Nurses.

The program would make women veterans who are in need of nursing care eligible to enter any home maintained by the government for veterans, with provision for a separate home for them. Their number warrants.

The benefits of the veterans' bureau act are also sought for the bureau's nurses having bedside contact with patients.

Hospital treatment for all veterans regardless of the origin of their disability is urged, together with extension of the three-year period of presumption for tubercular and neuropsychiatric disabilities.

Removal for the time limit on applications for compensation and permission for any applicant to appear before the rating board in person at government expense, are asked, and the same privilege of reinstating war risk insurance is sought for veterans disabled in the service as enjoyed by those not disabled. Retirement of disabled emergency officers on the same basis as regular army officers also is advocated.

Among other proposals is one for establishment of a committee on veterans' affairs in the house of representatives, and another for codification of all veteran laws.

presented respectively by the finance committee and by the sewers and drains committee, were approved for vote of the people without comment.

Start Work for Parks.

Atlanta civic organizations interested in the success of the $2,000,000 park program, began Monday active work to insure the success of campaign for the bond issue required to carry the project to completion.

Council's approval of three other bond proposals, totaling nearly $2,000,000, was declared by park bond advocates, not to affect seriously the chances of the park program. They asserted that the need for more recreation places was too generally conceded to be affected by other appeals for money.

M. C. Kiser, chairman of the park committee of the Atlanta Real Estate board, was preparing Monday to rally all the civic organizations which have endorsed the park movement and make use of their active support in securing a majority for the bond issue.

Women Give Aid.

Among the strongest supporters are the women's organizations. Mrs. J. W. C. A., the women's division of the chamber of commerce, the Y. W. C. A., the Atlanta chapter of the D. A. R., the City Federation of Women's clubs, and others.

The park program includes a new 80-acre park in the Tan Yard branch section and improvement of 500 acres of now idle park reserves in each ward of the city. The $2,000,000 fund to be divided to expend $800,000 on the Central park and $100,000 in each ward.

GRAND JURY PROBING ALLEGED "LOVE PLOT"

his home last Monday, was one of the first witnesses to be quizzed by the grand jury. He came from the room suddenly and at once sought his counsel, Judge Newton Morris. Later he mingled with the crowds in front of the courthouse, where an election was in progress, and returned to his home about 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Edwards, who had promised to make a complete statement after the grand jury investigation, failed to do so after a consultation with his counsel.

Appear Before Jury.

Other witnesses before the grand jury, J. T. Harper, H. G. Hardage and J. S. Bobbs, all from Dallas, are understood to have testified that they were awakened by Edwards on the night of the shooting and that he asked them to help him remedy some engine trouble he had with his automobile. Bobbs is an automobile supply dealer residing at Dallas.

This is the first time that officers were informed that Edwards had driven back to Atlanta by way of Dallas.

Grover Brown, the neighbor of Edwards who it is said snatched the all-advanced by Edwards as to having spent the night of the shooting in Atlanta, told the officers Monday that Edwards and he had driven through Dallas, Ga., shortly after 2 o'clock in the morning and that Edwards had there discarded his overalls and thrown them into an alley. The overalls were recovered by Deputy Sheriff T. M. Sanders and were shown to the grand jury. They were identified by witnesses as belonging to Edwards.

Had Been Cleaned.

The pair of overalls presented to the grand jury had been scrupulously cleaned before they were recovered. The man who found them had apparently intended to use them himself.

Bobbs, it was stated, reported to the grand jury that he heard that a piece of the discarded overalls was found on the back fence of the Bullard home. The overalls recovered by Deputy Sheriff Sanders showed a large tear on one of the legs.

To county officers Grover Brown declared that he and Edwards had driven off in the direction of Dallas. He had waited for Edwards in a grove while the latter went in search of a man who was said to have some apple brandy. While waiting he fell asleep and later was aroused by Edwards when he returned shouting, "Let's go, they are after me," Brown told the officers.

Will Show Empty Shell.

Another object to be shown the jury is the empty shell which was found in the Bullard home. The shell was identified by D. D. Bullard as the only one in the house at the time of the shooting. He recognized the shell, he said, because he had picked it up in the fields some weeks ago where it had become blackened by the weather. It was the same shell which he had placed in a little box on the mantel shelf. No one except he and his wife knew where the shell was, Bullard said.

"The finding of that shell definitely links my wife with the shooting," Bullard declared. "She alone knew where it was and it seems clear to me that she knows more about the shooting than she has said," Bullard stated.

The pillow on which Bullard lay sleeping when the shot was fired at him and which was riddled with bird-shot and drenched with blood was one of the exhibits shown to the grand jury Monday. The pillow on which

Claim Trump Card

Deputy Sheriff T. M. Sanders, who has had charge of the investigation since the beginning, said Monday that the prosecution has one trump card which it will not play until the proper time comes. "We are determined to get at the bottom of this thing, I think we know the truth by now, but we are leaving no stone unturned to further strengthen our case. We have been busy all day unearthing further evidence and at the present time it looks as if we have a strong case against Edwards."

He steadfastly refused to tell reporters what his trump card would be. "I will tell you when the grand jury investigation is over. I will tell everything I know about this case, but I won't talk now. There has been too much talking in this thing already and each time the newspapers get a hold of something it blocks our path," he added.

Mrs. Ruth Bullard, the wife of D. D., is still at the home of her father, A. Powell Springs. She has kept a persistent silence since the night of the shooting with the exception of protesting her entire innocence with the affair.

Bullard, with his hands swaddled in bandages, has left the Marietta sanitarium and is staying at the home of his father, W. D. Bullard, who lives on the farm next to his son's.

Other witnesses before the grand jury Monday were H. P. Wheeler, a garage man from Dallas, and J. L. Phillips, of Newhope. It is understood they all testified that they had seen Edwards when he drove through Dallas and Newhope a few hours after the shooting of Bullard.

Asked for Arrests

As soon as Bullard was brought to the Marietta sanitarium Tuesday he asked for the arrest of his wife and Sam Edwards, a well-to-do neighbor. He told the sheriff that he suspected his wife and Edwards of the shooting which came near costing him his life. He claimed that on account of the darkness in his bedroom the shot had been aimed badly and had been discharged in his hands which he was holding above his head "in order of holding in his head."

Mrs. Bullard stoutly maintains that an unknown man entered by the back window and after firing the shot of birdshot at her husband withdrew again through the back door. Bullard maintains that his wife did not get up out of bed after he had awakened with a terrible pain and stumbled around the room trying to light the lamp.

THE CONSTITUTION'S DAILY WOMAN'S MAGAZINE

Arranges for Reception

Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore, Sr., who is chairman of the hospitality committee of the Atlanta Woman's club, is in charge of the arrangements for the brilliant reception which the club will give this afternoon for Governor and Mrs. Clifford Walker, the members of the Georgia legislature and their wives.

Miss Vollmer's Play Creates Interest.

Lulu Vollmer's play of the North Carolina mountain people "Sun-Up" at the Provincetown theater, New York, has created a tremendous sensation. Miss Vollmer is a southern girl and is devoted, heart and soul to the interests of the people of whom she writes. "Sun-Up" is her first long play to have a New York showing. "Sun-Up" is a one-act sketch having been done in vaudeville a few years ago. Miss Vollmer is a South Carolinian and finished her education in boarding school at Asheville, N. C. For a number of years she was auditor for the Piedmont hotel, Atlanta, Ga., and during her spare time she wrote four plays, a novel, motion picture scenarios, short stories and conducted a theatrical column in one of Atlanta's leading newspapers. In 1917 she came to New York and a year later wrote "Sun-Up." For two years Miss Vollmer has been treasurer of the Theater Guild, with offices at the Garrick theater.

Miss Vollmer, always interested in the southern girl, recently joined the Southern Woman's Educational Alliance, the southern center to help the girl find out the education she needs, and then to help her to get it—the bridge between the southern girl and the right educational opportunity.

Miss Vollmer says that the southern people hunger for the "learning" they cannot get, and she believes that through the work of the alliance in behalf of the girl in the south, that there will eventually be worked out some sort of a sympathetic educational plan for these primitive people of the Carolina mountains, by which their needs will be met and their simplicity and sincerity kept intact. The plot of "Sun-Up" is based on the inquiry of a young mountaineer lad who is in a southern camp, "Is This Myr France?"

CHAPTER XXVI
A Unique Party.

As Gloria stood there staring at him, Morton Phelps turned, and for the second time that day reddened under her steady gaze. But after a moment's hesitation he crossed the room to her side.

"Surprised to see you here, Gloria?" he commented, with an inquiring glance at Guy. "Going rather fast for a younger man, aren't you?"

"Just out of school and all that!" The negro band burst into a blare of sound at that moment, and he held out his arms to her. "Want to dance?" he asked.

"She did not want to dance with him. His gesture created the old tumult in her breast, unwilling though she was to acknowledge it. She felt that she was a traitor to her cousin, in witnessing the treachery of her cousin's husband. But Guy was already on his way to their table; a moment later he began to dance with Mimi. She could not be left standing there alone, unwilling accepted Phelps' invitation."

"Clever girl," isn't she?" he remarked, with a nod toward the girl who was still painting, surrounded now by an admiring circle of men. "Want to meet her?"

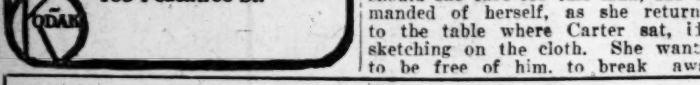

Gloria shook her head; her throat felt too choked to permit speech. He had been married to Virginia less than a week—and here he was with this other girl!

ESCAPED LEPER VISITS CAPITAL

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, July 16.—John R. Early, whose detention as a leper, caused a country-wide sensation some years ago, has escaped from confinement for the fourth time and has paid a visit to his old haunts around Washington.

Having completed his call here, he today reported to the District of Columbia health authorities, who ordered him sent back to the national leprosy hospital at Carville, La. He had been living at a downtown hotel. He left the leprosy house three weeks ago, he told the authorities, and since then he had visited Chattanooga, Tenn.; Asheville and Tryon, N. C.; Chicago and Milwaukee.

"Anybody know where we are?" Carter demanded presently. "We should have reached Pelham by now." He spoke rather thickly and Gloria looked at him with distrust; she knew that he had drunk a great deal during the evening, but had no idea that he was not in control of his own mind. He looked completely befuddled.

Guy glanced sharply. "Better give me the wheel, Carter," he urged, and they drove up in the road beside a small cottage to change seats.

An old man came down from the porch, a towel in one hand and a huge pair of shears in the other. It was daylight now and behind him his garden was a mass of fragrant, vividly colored bloom. Tall, brilliant stalks, heavy headed roses, tall, fine leaved cosmos that promised a mist of mauve flowers later—Gloria caught her breath as she looked at it.

The old man went back to it and began to cut an armful of flowers, as Guy asked questions about the road back New York and Carter and Mimi established themselves more comfortably. As Guy took his place and Gloria settled herself in hers the man came forward, holding out the flowers.

"Please take these, miss," he urged. "I can see you like 'em."

Gloria held out her arms delightedly and he handed her a bouquet of flowers. Mimi shrugged her shoulders in disgust.

"I wish I knew how you do it!" she told Gloria, as the car started with a jerk. "Everybody falls for you!"

Forrests Needed For Port Success Declares Hale

Conservation of the forests of Georgia and the southeast is an absolute necessity. If the southeastern ports of Brunswick, Savannah, Jacksonville and Charleston are to be developed, according to Matthew Hale, president of the South Atlantic Maritime Corporation. The statement was made at a luncheon to the delegates of the Georgia Forestry association at the Piedmont hotel Monday.

At the present time, the only dependable cargo stores are the only dependable cargo stores are the ports from which export these goods for export.

"It will be unreasonable to expect a manufacturer to route his product by way of Savannah, Brunswick, or Charleston without having a 24-hour assurance of how long his shipments would remain on the dock. Unless the Georgia Forestry association is given encouragement and backed by the people of the state and of the southeast is conserved, it is only a question of time," said Mr. Hale.

"Until the naval stores industry in this section is a thing of the past." Three leaders in the fields they represent spoke at the meeting Monday. They were W. B. Hunter, president of the Georgia Fruit exchange, located in the Rhodes building, Atlanta; Thomas Gamble, editor of the Naval Stores Review, and Matthew Hale, president of the Southeastern Maritime corporation, Washington, D. C.

The keynote of the convention is the conservation of the forests in order to assure a lasting and economic distribution of lumber.

The convention will come to a close Tuesday.

Officer Doyl's skull was fractured in two places and the officer was confined in the hospital for fifty-six days. Doyl was attempting to arrest Hurst in connection with the theft of five automobiles, all of which had been recovered.

GUARDSMEN SPEND HARD DAY IN CAMP

St. Simon's Island, Ga., July 16.—(Special).—After a weary day of unloading equipment from baggage cars onto a tug steamer and constructing a city of tents, the twenty National Guardsmen in camp at Camp Coney, on St. Simon's island, for fifteen days, are now attempting to make the most of their military training course, calculated to fit them for service at instant notice.

The first day was filled with one man's job after another to be done, and there was no place for slacking. Father and son, Benjamin and Roy Novelle, respectively, marched down the company street with rifles on shoulders and full pack strapped on back, the son a sergeant and the father a private. Both are members of the Gate City Guards.

Sergeant John A. Bollen, of Atlanta, distinguished himself by efficiently handling details of unloading Company.

Following supper Monday evening the men turned out in bathing suits and joined the summer cottage dwellers of the island on the beach and in the city.

H. E. Montague, state Y. M. C. A. director, and H. T. Quillian, general secretary of LaGrange Y. M. C. A., are preparing to open a ball where athletic equipment, uniforms and other comforts will be distributed to the men.

A radio receiving set, the property of Bill Lowe, of Atlanta, is in process of installation and will be ready to catch all WGM programs Tuesday. This will be a big feature of the camp entertainment program.

Man Badly Hurt In Five-Story Fall Into Shaft

H. G. Jones, 600 Flat Shoals avenue, miraculously escaped death Monday night, when he fell five stories down an elevator shaft in the Chamber of Commerce building. He was brought to Grady hospital immediately after the accident by A. Dugan, who operates a fruit and soda stand on the ground floor, and L. S. Boone, who is employed by Daguerre.

Jones received a broken leg, just above the knee, in addition to numerous painful cuts and bruises about his body. Grady authorities stated that he probably will recover.

Jones, who is night-watcher in the building, had gone in the elevator to the fifth floor, it is said, to inspect the work of a number of negroes.

While he was out of sight of the shaft, it was declared, one of the negroes entered the elevator going to the sixth floor. The shaft door was left open and Jones, not realizing his peril, fell down the shaft.

Police Working On Bomb Outrage In Brookhaven

Police officers investigating the dynamiting on Thursday night of an out-house near the home of James T. Dickey in Brookhaven at Peachtree and Colonial roads, advanced the theory Monday that someone had the place dynamited in order to frighten away the occupants.

The out-house is located in the a retired army officer, and has been the home of James T. Dickey, occupied by Mrs. A. J. Duren, Miss Geraldine Sullivan, a stepdaughter of Mr. Dickey's and his 3-year-old grandson, Jack Clayton. The dynamiting took place while there was no one in the house.

The dynamiters left a card tacked to a post near the house which read: "Notice! We warn you to move at once."

The finding of the notice strengthened the police theory that the unknown dynamiters instead of wishing to do bodily harm to those occupying the house, had intended to frighten away the occupants by the warning, following the drastic measures resorted to on Thursday night.

The house is now under police surveillance.

FARMERS ARE MAD, SAYS MRS. HARRIS

verses upon their return to their respective authors.

"I could make an interesting and swiftly moving picture of another editor, when he learned that I, a certain famous authoress was outside, waiting to come in and read her story to him. 'She will have to die to this chair before she does that,' he exclaimed with a terrible look."

Editor Is Victor.

"When the lady came in, however, his expression was as mild as a May breeze, blowing over a flower garden. Never have I seen, except in other editors, such perfect and serene control of the human features. But I need not add to you who have passed through so many similar ordeals, that she did not read the thing to him. On the contrary, he actually persuaded her to submit it to another editor," she laughed.

"I would not go so far as to say that you are the leaders, or even the exponents of public opinion."

said he has been sending to farmers editors to help build up a public sentiment which will rid Georgia of "unjust and unfair system of taxation which is imposing upon one-half of the people the burden of the government while another half is enjoying its fruits and dodging responsibility of payment."

Pointing out that adoption of either the proposed classified tax, the income tax or a combination of the classified and income tax will be "unpopular and turn loose a howl from the demagogue," the governor declared that Georgia will not get anywhere in the effort to avert economic fusion and in putting harmony in the ranks of the lawmakers in order that out of this session will come a substitute for the "antiquated system of taxation now in vogue."

The governor referred to a recent appeal of his in which he urged that advertisement of the "bad in our state be ceased." "We have enough good things in Georgia to advertise without flaunting before the world all the badness that occurs within our borders," he said.

Governor Speaks

Without advocating any of the sundry tax measures before the Georgia legislature, Governor Clifford M. Walker tonight appealed to Georgia

"They know why the price of wheat went down below the cost of production last year. It was because Mr. Hoover fixed the price of wheat exported to starving Russia, and they know that the chief imports from Russia are bolshevism, the eight-hour day, more wages for less work, which is stripping the land of labor."

"They know that the high tariff imposed by the republican administration is responsible for the ruinous cost of calcium arsenate this year and this same republican administration suddenly adopted the democratic ideal of free trade to let peanuts in free of duty, thereby ruining the peanut farmers of the south. Believe me, dear brethren, they are mad as fire, and they are beginning to think like hornets."

"No one understands this so well as the country town editor. So his attitude to the farmer is personally soothing and practically helpful. He meets him when he comes to town and tells him where he can get what he wants for the least cost. He puts in his paper every week what he should be reminded to do. If it is early spring, he makes a great deal about trimming or spraying fruit trees. He lets him know in the berry season what merchants in town will buy his berries to ship. He tells when the next poultry car will be on the side-track there and how to cull fowls from his flock for the market."

"He is, you may say, the poet and prophet of the whip-orwill pen, when the season is late and maybe no chance to get in enough corn and cotton. He slaps in a praiseful item about any farmer who has done anything well. He puts a crown on that old hayseed's head, even if it is nothing but the largest potato grown in the county. How that kind of spooning does help. He is doing what he can to counteract propaganda of this republican administration."

THE GUMPS—OLD DOLLAR MARK ANDY

No Man's Hand

BY HUGH MACNAIR KAHLER

Next Week, "Lilian"
By Arnold Bennett

The room interested Larsen as queerly expressive of its owner. There was in everything the same slight over-statement which made Bleeker himself pathetically ridiculous to the penetrating eye, a note of pretense of an elaborate surface concealing a hollow-sounding sham so assiduously that it deceived itself.

The furniture was massive and deeply carved, but Larsen's critical inspection needed only a glance to know that it was a rather indifferent counterfeit of the solid, old stuff it pretended to be.

The bookcases, fronted with glass, held the kind of literature he had expected—long rows of uniform editions of ponderous authors.

He chuckled as he inspected them, trying to imagine Mr. Alfred Bleeker solemnly reading his way through them as a duty to himself.

His chuckle fairly shook him when he looked more closely and discovered that row after row was composed of a strip of tooled leather, tacked on a hidden board—no more than a counterfeit of the backs of the volumes!

Alfred Bleeker to the life! He craved the appearance of a book lover, but he could not endure the price. This represented the compromise between the warring desires.

Larsen glanced at the taboret which held humidor, cigarettes and ash trays. These seemed to be genuine hammered silver. But, like the rest, they were imitation—a thin wash of electroplating on a brass base.

He opened the humidor, half prepared to find it stocked with the cheapest cigar procurable. To his surprise it revealed a tempting row of the aureate perfectos which had stirred his speculations before.

Evidently Bleeker conceded himself true luxury in this one respect! Somehow the circumstance lifted him in Larsen's regard. At least he knew and smoked a sound cigar without counting the cost.

But the electrical cigar lighter, which stood on the table, brought back the shille. Bleeker might smoke a costly perfecto, but his instinct compelled him to save the waste of matches.

Larsen examined the device with casual interest, remembering suddenly that Bleeker's business concerned such articles as this—he had made the money from the manufacture of electro-thermal apparatus in the early days of the industry.

Probably this lighter had cost him nothing. That explained its presence here, then. If he had had to buy it, he might have clung to the extravagance of the matchbox, after all.

Presently Bleeker strutted in. "I thought I'd better come at once," he announced. "We've made investigations today, and they incline me to think that your friend is in very real danger as long as he stays in Pittland. In fact, I am here to suggest that you use your influence to persuade him to take a short trip—for his health—say, Africa, or South America, for a year or two."

Mr. Bleeker folded his hands and looked very grave. "Do you mean to say that the police confess themselves unable to protect a law-abiding citizen in—the home of—in my home?"

"It's hardly an official admission, sir. It's my personal opinion. But you seemed to be deeply attached to your friend. If I felt toward him as you do, I should by all means counsel him to get away from Pittland and stay away—indeed."

As he spoke a woman passed by in the hall—Mrs. Bleeker. Larsen guessed as his eye photographed her. She was years younger than her husband, probably in the early thirties, with a cold, clear beauty the child of a repellent rather than attractive.

Carol Bleeker carried herself splendidly. Her fur, her hat, her wrap, told him that she thoroughly understood the art and science of dress.

It occurred to Larsen suddenly that she might easily be a factor in the troublesome equation before him.

To do him justice, however, he put the thought out of his mind almost at once. Even the brief glimpse of Carol told him it was absurd to entertain any theory involving sentiment or emotion on her part! No twenty Phil Corcorans could have shaken that frozen reserve he had seen in Alfred Bleeker's second wife.

He repeated his warning to Bleeker. "Corcoran should go away and stay away—indeed!"

"But that would be equivalent to confession," protested the wealthy man. "If the situation is so dangerous as to warrant that advice on your part, why don't you arrest the man—wherever he is?"

"We have discovered too many people who consider themselves wronged by Corcoran to take any preventive steps such as you suggest," said Larsen. "We might arrest one man, perhaps, and put him under bonds to keep the peace, but we can't do it with seven or eight! And I might add that if the fear of execution doesn't restrain a man from murder, the fear of losing a little money certainly won't!"

Bleeker considered for several minutes. "You make it sound as if the boy had—had behaved badly to a number of rather evil-looking people. Of course I know that this is not the case! I am sure he's been guilty of nothing except possibly the usual follies—regrettable but not actually reprehensible—which one learns to expect from youth deprived of proper environment and influence. But I assume that you speak advisedly—in earnest."

"Very much so. I can't make any warning too emphatic. He's really in more kinds of danger than a man can safely face. I don't recall a case in which there have been so many strong indications of trouble ahead from so many different sources."

Larsen shook his head. "Why, Mr. Bleeker, if anything should happen to him, we'd have a mighty hard time choosing among the people who have the motive, at least, and perhaps the means and the opportunity."

"You shock me, Larsen. I had no idea of this. I shall urge him to go abroad. H'm. I might even contrive to send him. I could let vent a business errand. I shall see what I can do—at once."

Larsen commended the idea, and presently departed.

Walter Enfield, his face lined by the all but perpetual pain he suffered from a crippled leg, smiled patiently at Charlotte Gray's fervor of exasperation.

Close as the two were, the differences between them always amused Larsen—the girl vivaciously healthy and alive, eager and surrendered to governance of intuition and emotion, Enfield with his translucent skin, his sufferer's pallor, his reasoned speech, his complete reliance on intellect, precedent and law.

They made a queerly mismatched partnership, these three now gathered at Larsen's apartments and yet, as their accomplishments had demonstrated, they could work together to excellent purpose, supplementing each other rather than negatively.

"I'm getting pretty well fed up with your precious old laws, Walter," said Charlotte heatedly. "Here we've got a straight out-and-out case of being accessory before and after the fact to embezzlement, and you sit there and say there's nothing to be done about it!"

Enfield shrugged and looked whimsically across at Larsen. "I'm not the district attorney, Charlotte. He says he can't even put the case up to the grand jury. That's what stops the case. There's nothing in this idea of yours—not a thing in the world. Rackham knows I played fair with him. He's kept still about it all along. If he felt injured he'd have talked, wouldn't he?"

"I can only repeat that you're running a risk I shouldn't care to face," said Larsen.

"Keep your hands out of it! You've made a lot of trouble as it is. Poor old Bleeker's so cut up about that he doesn't want to—well, that's some more of my private business, but you've almost spoiled a cheerful little plan he had for me by butting in."

"After all, you're the one who would suffer."

"Of course I appreciate your interest. Mightily good of you to take so much trouble on my account—"

Corcoran rose, and slouched languidly out without farewells. Larsen watched him go, conscious of a helpless wrath quite his own. He would have enjoyed the relief of a blow on his own account! Corcoran had contrived to insult him so thoroughly during the brief interview that his anger was wholly personal. But the other man had given the detective an inkling of the reason which kept Corcoran in town.

He was hoping to make some money by staying, which he would lose by going away. That was clear enough. Larsen made a mental note to look into the "cheerful little plan" in the morning. His allies rejoined him.

The conversation had been audible to them both.

"What's he up to?" Enfield frowned. "He's got his fingers near more of somebody's money. But whose?"

"Why, that's plain enough, isn't it?" said Miss Gray. "There's nobody else in Pittland who would trust him with a dime! It must be Bleeker."

In the afternoon next day Larsen met Bobby Rackham in Enfield's office. Stillborn had left its marks deep on the young fellow. He slouched a little; his eyes moved restlessly in a motionless face.

When he spoke it was in a rasping whisper, issuing from a corner of his mouth without visible movement of his lips. But he startled Larsen by his attitude.

"Any misunderstanding me down there," he said. "I'm going to square things with Corcoran, of course. But I'm not fool enough to risk going back there again on his account. I mean that I'd get the money back, and something extra, and maybe worry him some while I was getting it. I'm going to do that. I see how to do it, I think. But that's all!"

"That's sensible," said Larsen heartily. "But it'd be more sensible to let him alone. He's a pretty shifty article."

"I know that. I've paid something to find it out. But he's got one weak spot. He's in love with himself! He can't believe that there's anybody on earth who wouldn't come when he whistled. And that's where I'm going to hit him."

Rackham laughed. "I'm going to aunt him up and tell him I know he meant well by me, that I don't blame him a bit, that I hope he'll be friends as if nothing had happened. He'll fall for that. And before I'm done with him, things are going to turn right around. I've got it all framed up!"

"That's your story. He has a different one. And as long as he feels as he does—well, if I were you—"

"But you're not, you see! And I wish you'd quit frightening poor old Bleeker. The old boy's devoted to me, and he can't sleep for fear I'm going to be punctured all over the shop. There's nothing in this idea of yours—not a thing in the world. Rackham knows I played fair with him. He's kept still about it all along. If he felt injured he'd have talked, wouldn't he?"

After steering successfully through thirty years of legitimate stage work, Mr. Hitchcock has joined the ranks of the cinema. His lovable personality and ever appealing humor have won him an everlasting place among the greatest actors in the world.
Mr. Hitchcock will appear in a series of comedies which he says will portray the life enjoyed by the average American family. He will play opposite Mrs. Sidney Drew.
The comedies will be something different from the average productions of the day. The slapstick will be taken out of them. Mr. Hitchcock said, and they will be made just as funny, but with all crudeness eradicated.
For years he has ranked with the foremost comedians of the country and is now making his final appearance upon the stage. He consented to visit Atlanta and a few other southern states as a personal favor to Marcus Loew.
Thirty years ago Hitchcock made his first appearance in the chorus of a production, the name of which he himself has forgotten. Since that time his progress has been one brilliant step after another towards the heights.
Mr. Hitchcock told a Constitution reporter that he began his career

Home Buying Talk No. 10
Have the Owner Examined
In buying a home your dealings are generally with the salesman who shows you the property and you never meet or know the owner until the deal is closed and you are signing the papers, and sometimes not even then. You probably have the titles examined, but do you have the owner examined? The titles may be perfect and the owner very imperfect. After the deal is closed and the papers signed, your dealings with the pleasant, accommodating salesman are completed and FROM THAT DAY UNTIL THE PAYMENTS ARE COMPLETED you deal with the owner and the holder of the loan, who may be anything but pleasant and accommodating.
Our Years of Experience
show that very few people complete the payments for a home without at some time needing a little extension or other accommodation. Is it not wise then to investigate the standing and the record of the man with whom you will deal for years, before you sign the papers binding you to deal with him. Inquire as to how many years he has been in the business of selling homes and how he has treated those who dealt with him. Make him give you references to those who have dealt with him, consult them and be guided in that way. If he cannot or will not give you references, the answer is easy,
Don't Buy the House
We refer to hundreds of satisfied customers living at Capitol View and at other sections we have developed. Call Mr. Settle, Walnut 2811, get names and addresses and ask him to show you a five-room house on Fairbanks street, which you can buy for $5,300—$300 cash and $50 a month without a loan.

as a newspaper reporter. He served, he said, upon a New York county weekly for a few months. His main duty was to advise farmers about crop conditions, and "many other things of which he had little knowledge," he declared. Later he tried the stage and found success.
Loew's Grand audiences will see Mr. Hitchcock throughout the week Monday the large auditorium was filled to capacity with admirers who were anxious to see the comedian in his last personal appearance.
Mr. Hitchcock is staying at the Georgian Terrace and has been visited by many of his old southern friends.
